Paterson, N. Mrs. Bender used her husband's belt which he wore while in the United States army during the war. The attack occurred in front of

KEPT AWAY FROM HER 10 DAYS

Was Persuaded to Enter Room at the Deathbed Scene, but Stayed Only Short Time

New York, Oct. 1.—Charles Webb, soft-voiced, resting giant ignored his heiress bride, Mrs. Gertrude Gorman Webb, as she lay dying in the fashionable Westchester Biltmore Country Club at Rye, it developed today.

For ten days previous to the passing of the woman, who not endured to friends she was sure she had been poisoned, Webb had not entered her sick chamber.

While officials of the county [illegible] were investigating into the weird [illegible] under which Mrs. Webb met her death, [illegible] one of millions, and [illegible] changes in wills, Judge John F. McIntyre, old family friend and counsellor, described the disturbed state of

He said:

"Mrs. Webb was unconscious. My wife knew her intimate were numbered. There was no clergyman present, and as my wife is a Catholic she knelt by the bed to recite the litany for the dying.

ENTERS RELUCTANTLY.

"In the midst of it there came a tap at the door and Mr. Webb appeared. Mrs. McIntyre went to the door herself. She told Mr. Webb his wife was dying and asked him to come in.

"He said he did not care to do so, but with my wife's pressing he finally entered, and sat continued the litany. He knelt, but only on one knee, and Mrs. McIntyre would not continue until he dropped to both knees.

"Five minutes or more afterward Kingsbury, Webb's lawyer, appeared and said he had a dinner appointment at Sands Point and could wait no longer.

"Webb got up and left the room to join Kingsbury, but strayed about the clubhouse on the lawn for hours.

NOT FOR TEN DAYS

"Dr. Meyer said he had not forbidden Mr. Webb to enter the sick chamber of his wife, and Dr. Meyer will gladly substantiate this. I feel sure. As a matter of fact, Mr. Webb was not in the sick chamber for ten days before the day of his wife's death."

Of the ten-line will, now famous in which the heiress left her fortune of $3,000,000 to her husband, the woman dying told Judge McIntyre "I have no recollection of doing so. I have been in a daze a long time."

This daze, it is now charged, was

BRIGHTON DOG RUNS WILD; IS SHOT BY PATROLMAN

A German police dog, owned by John McLarren of No. 283 Washington street, Brighton, was shot by Patrolman Carmody of the Brighton police station, only after other officers had fired fifteen shots, after the dog had run amuck in Brighton, and had made several attempts to bite Brighton people. The dog was first noticed by Mrs. A. J. Furbush, of No. 200 Washington street, Brighton, when she was attacked by the dog at her home. Before she could get away from the dog, the animal had torn down a blind on the window and done other damage. He was chased down Washington street to Shannon street, chasing a woman into a store on Shannon street, and then back to Washington street. The dog was caught near Ivy street. The head of the animal will be sent to the State House today for examination.

HARVARD BRIDGE TIED UP BY CRASH

A girl was thrown from an auto to the pavement and traffic was delayed for more than half an hour on the Harvard bridge, when two machines crashed near the Boston side of the draw. Miss Alice Nash, a maid employed by F. S. Snow of No. 117 Bay State road, was severely shaken up.

ESCAPED CONVICT CAUGHT AFTER 24 HOURS OF LIBERTY

Springfield, Oct. 1. (I.N.S.)—Charles E. Bailey, 21, of this city, was returned to Hampden County jail here today after less than twenty-four hours liberty, following a sensational escape. Bailey pinned guards while prisoners were being exercised in the yards of the jail, and climbed a rain spout to the roof of the building from which he dropped to railroad tracks twenty feet below.

When captured in Thompsonville, Ct., he was wearing clothing stolen a few hours after his escape from a house in Longmeadow. Bailey is serving four years for the theft of eight automobiles. He is the first man to escape from the county jail in many years.

BEAT WRONG MAN AND APOLOGIZE

Lawrence, Oct. 1—Arthur Makras, fifty-eight years old, of No. 79 Valley street, while returning from the home of a South Lawrence friend, was kidnaped by a crowd of six youths in an automobile at Merrimac street and South Broadway, mercilessly beaten, and later thrown out of the machine on Hampshire street, in a weakened condition.

In his story to the police Makras said he was walking along Broadway when two men got out of the machine as it drew up to the curb and stunned him with blows to the head. Then he says he was thrown into the back of the machine as the car increased its speed to North Lawrence. When near Hampshire street one of the men said: "Say, old man, you are not the man we want. Sorry, it's our mistake." He was thrown out on the pavement and they motored on.

Makras told the police he was convinced that France was a better place to live in than Lawrence. "A man at least can walk the streets there without getting beat up," he declared.

KLANSMEN TO DEFY 100,000 ARMED FORCES AT OKLAHOMA POLLS

BLOODSHED FEARED IN TEST OF WALTON'S AUTOCRACY

of the Governor can prevent the electorate of the State from going to the polls to ballot at a special election, at which one of the matters for decision would be whether the lower house could meet on its own initiative.

The Governor has declared the whole armed force of the Commonwealth will be in the field to bar the election and to keep down rioting.

CALLS 75,000 VOLUNTEERS.

He has mobilized the entire National Guard, numbering approximately 5,000 men, and called to duty an army of citizen volunteers which he says is 75,000 strong.

At the same time he has directed his force of special State officers to assist regular county civil authorities in preventing the opening of the polls. The executive said there were 22,000 such officers under his control.

The first effect of the Governor's decree was seen today at Tulsa when a force of 100 armed volunteers threw a cordon about the Tulsa County Courthouse and announced they would not permit election supplies stored there to be distributed to precincts.

Simultaneously the Governor at his residence here reiterated his determination to prevent the election.

DETERMINED ON TEST.

"There will be no election," was the cry of W. D. McBee, State Representative and a leader in the defiance of the executive's proclamation postponing the election, said:

"We will put it to a test. We will learn whether we are free men entitled to cast a ballot, or slaves."

The Governor today assailed Attorney General Short as a member of the Ku Klux Klan when advised that the latter had expressed an opinion that the election is valid.

"The attorney general has been asked for no opinion by the chief executive," Governor Walton said. "His opinion is immaterial and has no legal weight whatsoever. George Short is a member of the Ku Klux Klan and that is to be expected from any member of the Klan."

CALLS ELECTION VALID.

Attorney General George F. Short declared:

"The election is valid and I have so instructed every county attorney who has asked my opinion. Every qualified voter should quickly and peaceably go to the polls and cast his vote as his conscience may tell him it should be cast."

The State is in a pitch of great excitement with the outcome awaited with open apprehension.

The Governor attributes all resistance to his policies to the Ku Klux Klan. He was more aroused than at any time since he began his "fight to a finish on the Invisible Empire."

"I have been pretty nice to those fellows compared to what I can be," he said. "But they've gone far enough. About one more shot from them and I'll clamp martial law down so hard over this State that it will give you newspaper boys something sensational to write about.

"I'll make every person in Oklahoma go to bed at 6 o'clock. I'll shut things up tight at night. There will be thousands of vacant houses in this State if they don't watch out."

Dublin Man Fails to Sing Irish Song; Is Shot Dead

Dublin, Oct. 1.—"Why can't you sing something Irish!" shouted a group of men to Hubert Ruddock, twenty-four years old, who was singing as he wended his way home from the Theatre Royal with a brother and a friend.

Ruddock and those with him resented the remark, and a fight followed. Later, while they were continuing their way home along Harcourt street, fire was opened on them from a side street and Hubert Ruddock fell dead with a bullet through his back.

WOMAN VICTIM OF GAS WAS DOCTOR

The woman found dead by suicide from gas poisoning at her apartment, No. 480 Columbus avenue, South End, Saturday morning, was identified by relatives as Dr Alma Fowler of Taunton, specialist in nerve diseases and a prominent woman physician.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Johnson of Methuen were the relatives. They are cousins of Dr. Fowler and called at her apartment for an informal visit, unaware that she was dead. Inquiries of another lodger brought them the information that a woman of that age who claimed to be a nurse had committed suicide.

WAS UNMARRIED.

Dr. Fowler, according to the Johnsons, was 37 years old, and was unmarried. She was the daughter of Mrs. Fred Fowler of Taunton and a graduate of Tufts Medical school. She was recently in Florida.

It was learned that Dr. Fowler had been in the apartment only during the past month. According to a neighbor with whom Dr. Fowler was friendly, she is declared to have come from Florida four weeks ago and hired the same apartment she occupied while she was studying in Tufts some years ago. In Florida Dr. Fowler was employed by the Ponciano Hotel at Palm Beach.

DIABETES SUFFERER.

While there she discovered that she was suffering from diabetes. She left her position and came to Boston.

"We are absolutely stunned to learn of Dr. Fowler's death," declared Mrs. Johnson. "Only four weeks ago she paid us a visit. She had just returned from Florida where she had been working hard and seemed to me absolutely normal.

"She took the apartment, she said, so that she could rest and regain her health. She had always been of nervous temperament.

WEALTHY PATRONS.

"She was graduated from Tufts fifteen years ago and studied abroad for years. Her mother spent thousands of dollars on her education. She had practiced in different sections of the country, but particularly in Florida, where she had many wealthy patrons. She was a specialist in masseuse and nerve treatment.

"It seems to me just a case of over work and the strain of continuous duty. I did not know she was afflicted with any disease."

ing a hunger strike and the government contended he had regained his mental health.

This contention, opposed by the defense, was sustained by experts who examined Sacco, and whose finding was made known today.

Vanzetti, who has been confined in the State Prison at Charlestown, was taken to Dedham by automobile, arriving shortly after 10 o'clock. He was put into the cage in the courtroom under heavy guard. Sacco was not brought in until a short time later.

A large crowd was on hand before the opening of the doors, in front of which three State constables stood guard. The crowd was searched for weapons by police officers and State police.

TEN LAWYERS IN CASE.

One of the motions for a new trial was based on the allegation that Foreman Ripley of the original jury carried bullets into the jury room.

Two other motions alleged perjury by government witnesses, a fourth that one of the government witnesses had been indicted for horse stealing, and the fifth was based on the contention of experts that bullets introduced by the State did not compare with those taken from the body of the victim.

There are ten lawyers in the case.

FIGURES IN MYSTERY OF MRS. WEBB'S DEATH

Mrs. Webb's body is borne from her late home in Madison avenue after funeral services for shipment to Philadelphia. Above is the beautiful Summer home Mrs. Webb bought at Fairfield, Ct., a short time before her death. Inset shows William T. Hunter, her uncle, a legatee under her first will. He demanded an autopsy after he learned the circumstances of her death. Top picture shows Mrs. Webb as she looked in 1910.

WEBB FAILED TO VISIT WIFE FOR TEN DAYS BEFORE DEATH CAME

brought on by the introduction of poison tablets into the woman's system through irregular channels. They were taken internally but not swallowed.

They comprised a slow poison of such a baffling nature four physicians in attendance could make no certain diagnosis. But they were sure, when death claimed the heiress, that circumstances were mysterious enough to warrant investigation and refused to issue a certificate for burial until an autopsy had been performed.

WEIRD CASE.

Toxologists today are tracing this poison. If it is found in certain organs, Manhattan will have on its hands one of the weirdest murder cases in history. It is reported unofficially that chemists at Bellevue Hospital had found poison of a corrosive nature.

As strange as any circumstance in the death of Mrs. Webb is the story of her awakening as a bride to the intimacies of matrimony which caused her to say that her marriage to Webb was the "most ghastly mistake of my life."

This 38-year-old heiress had led a cloistered life. She was childish in her innocence. Webb, approaching 50 years in age, wooed her seven years before he won her. Five of these years his suit was fought bitterly by the dead woman's mother. She died.

It took the little fat man with the purring voice two more years to win the girl with millions.

LOST ALL LOVE.

Then came marriage and within ten months, death. Before death marital experiences which she told to two married women friends shocked them. One of these friends said today: "She had lost all her love for him and had no desire to leave him a penny of her fortune."

Dr. Z. A. O. Goettler, pathologist of Bellevue Hospital, New York, notified Coroner Fitzgerald that after a careful search, he had discovered unmistakable traces of poison, possibly bichloride of mercury, in the body of the slain woman.

Mrs. Robert S. Johnstone, a friend, said:

"I could tell you the story, the real story, of Gertie's death. She died in my arms. I went to school with her. I knew her and loved her as well as anyone on earth. But I can't talk yet."

Judge McIntyre said:

"Mrs. Webb communicated her suspicions that she had been poisoned to Mrs. Johnstone, wife of former Judge Johnston and not to us. Mrs. Webb was quite convinced before she died that she had been a victim of a powerful poison introduced into her system by some extraneous means.

EX-SWEETHEART FOUND

A new person was introduced into the case in George Taylor, an old friend and former sweetheart of Mrs. Webb. He has known Charles Webb, the widower, for the last seven years and has been on good terms with him. Mr. Taylor made the following statement in New York to Captain Arthur Carey of the homicide squad:

"I was wholly unprepared for what I had found at the Westchester Biltmore Club. Mrs. Webb's room was on the third floor. When I was summoned there.

"Webby raged up and down the hall and I begged him not to go on in that manner. I was afraid Webby would become violent because he can be erratic at times when under a strain. It has been said that Webby did not enter his wife's room before she died, but that is a mistake."

Mr. Webb has made no statement concerning his wife's death.

the house of Justice Frank X. Graves, before whom Dr. Bender and Miss Wagner were arraigned. Dr. Bender and Miss Wagner were arrested by private detectives in an East Paterson garage. Warrants for their arrest were issued on the basis of an alleged statutory offence which, it is charged in the complaints, were committed in Paterson on September 15. They were arraigned and later released under $1,000 bail each. Mrs. Bender, speaking of the whipping said:

"I'm sorry I was prevented by the officer from giving them more, because they both deserve it. He has gone to the end of his rope.

"I don't want to go so far as to have them arrested, but I had to do it."

Referring to the disappearance of Dr. Bender and Miss Wagner simultaneously last October, when the pair were away from Paterson for several weeks, Mrs. Bender said: "I shielded him on that occasion for the sake of our daughter, when on his return I announced that he had gone away with my knowledge and that I had packed his grip for him, which was not so."

When asked if she would apply for a divorce, Mrs. Bender said, "certainly not."

U. S. NAVY TO BE 'HEAVEN' FOR ENLISTED MEN

Washington, Oct. 1.—The Navy, once an organization of machines squares, cubes and other technicalities, is to be made intensely human through development of worthy traits in the individual.

This is essentially the message brought back from the Pacific Coast by Captain Richard H. Leigh, Assistant Chief of the Bureau of Navigation, who has held several conferences with Secretary Denby, Assistant Secretary Roosevelt, Judge Advocate General Lauiner, and chiefs of the Bureaus of Navigation and Operations.

It was pointed out that the bunks are better than hammocks, and lockers, than the time-honored sea-bag. Promise was given that recommendations for promotions of enlisted men would be carried out with more dispatch.

Perhaps the most important course decided upon refers to petty punishments. In "old Navy" days courtmartials cluttered the department. Now the idea is to give high naval authorities authority to pass immediately on a case and dispose of it by fine.

1 DEAD, 5 HURT IN TWO AUTO ACCIDENTS

Portsmouth, N. H., Oct. 1.—Mrs. R. H. Haverland, twenty-three years old, No. 258 Washington street, Weymouth Landing, Mass., was killed and five other persons were injured in two automobile accidents on the LaFayette road on the outskirts of this city.

George, the three-year-old son of Mrs. Haverland, received minor cuts and bruises.

Paul Tilmus, No. 2329 Decatur street, Brooklyn, is in the Portsmouth Hospital with a broken arm and Miss Margaret Davis, also of Brooklyn, was treated at the hospital for cuts and bruises.

MALDEN PEOPLE HURT

Mrs. M. A. Sargent, No. 100 Pearl street, Malden, Mass., and a Mr. Sweet, No. 195 Olive street, Malden, Mass., were cut about the head and face with flying glass, and taken to the Portsmouth Hospital for treatment.

Mrs. Haverland was killed when an automobile being driven around the wreck of two automobiles, collided with the Haverland car, parked on the roadside. Haverland had gone to inspect the wreck ahead of him. He heard the crash and ran back to see his car plunge into a swamp at the roadside. The child was thrown clear of the wreckage.

DIES IN HOSPITAL.

A wrecking crew working on the first cars in collision released Mrs. Haverland, who was pinned beneath the car. She died at the Portsmouth Hospital four hours later.

Tilmus and Miss Davis were passengers in the car in collision with Haverland.

Mrs. Sargent and Sweet were in the car, the wreck of which Haverland went to inspect when he left his automobile. Neither was seriously injured.

Mrs. Haverland was popular with the younger set at Weymouth Landing and was active in affairs of the American Legion. Haverland is employed in the advertising department of the Stetson Shoe Company at Weymouth.

told them there was no further danger.

A pedestrian passing noticed flames in the basement and notified the hospital authorities. Dr. J. C. Blaisdell sounded an alarm and then notified the main hospital building.

Switchboard Operator Earl H. Devlin, a student at the New England Conservatory of Music, sounded the fire gongs in all the buildings and called out the fire squad of the hospital.

When the gong sounded in Vose Hall the nurses rushed into the hallways and found them filled with smoke. Throwing bathrobes over their night clothing, the women filed out.

In the other buildings doctors and attendants prepared to remove patients if the flames spread. Other doctors and attendants rushed to Vose Hall with fire extinguishers and fought the flames.

A call was relayed to City Hospital, which notified the Homeopathic that they were standing by to help rush patients from the hospital if needed.

While there was much smoke the actual fire damage was small, estimated at $500. An investigation is under way by hospital authorities. It is believed the fire may have been caused by a lighted cigaret.

MUSSOLINI DECIDES to sell advertising space on postage stamps.

It will not be good publicity. Advertising on street car transfers, tried, is found not worth while. Advertising on postage stamps will be worth even less.

The person putting on the stamp won't look at, much less read, the advertising.

Advertising is valuable only when put where people want to see it, when they have leisure to read it. The best advertising is in daily newspapers. "Repetition is reputation."

DR. SCHNEIDER of Berkeley, Cal., in the interest of science, will drug himself with a drug called kaapi used by savages of the upper Amazon. It "unchains the fierce impulses of the subconscious, transforming men into savage beasts." Kaapi is an expensive drug, hard to get. But that needn't worry you.

Swallow half a pint of the whiskey sold "everywhere except in 5 and 10-cent stores," as Raymond Hitchcock puts it. That bootleg "Kaapi," if you survive, will give you every sensation to be got from Amazon drug and more.

A STRANGE ASSASSIN of Budapest kills in the Zoological garden. An old hippopotamus, one ostrich, three alligators and a baboon are his victims to date. Pins in food killed the ostrich, he poisoned the baboon.

"Strange," you say, "what could induce a man to kill poor creatures with no chance to defend themselves?"

WELL, WHAT PLEASURE do men find shooting quail and pheasants turned out, fed, almost tame? What pleasure in pulling out of the water, with steel hooks in their mouths, fish bred especially that somebody might have the pleasure of cooking them?

THE ANIMAL KILLER in Budapest is probably insane. The other animal killers haven't that excuse, but another as good. They inherit through five hundred thousand years of ancestry the pleasure in killing, born of the fact that killing was necessary before they could eat. It will take time for that to wear out.

THERE'S A PLAN to simplify the coal problem. Railroads won't like it; no more coal to carry. Middle men will detest it.

The idea is change the coal into electric current at the mine.

Electricity carries itself over the wires, with no bumping freight cars, no flat wheels, no loading and unloading. Instead of buying coal, change it into power and heat, five hundred or a thousand miles from the mine, skilled labor at the mines would change coal into electricity to be used for heat, light, power wherever wanted. They will come in time.

It ought to come now.

Nothing is more preposterous than carrying coal a thousand miles to put it on a grate and burn it into power or heat, when it could be changed to electricity, able to do the work, right where it is dug. It would be no more foolish to move a waterfall to a factory and develop power there, instead of developing it at the waterfall, running it to the factory by wire.

The loss of power in transformation would be less than the loss in hauling and distributing. Perhaps Henry Ford will oblige with a demonstration. He might begin with the waste "slash" in his Michigan forest, burning that slash in great furnaces, then changing steam to electricity.

HOW POWERFUL are the Ku Klux? That question will be answered soon as regards Oklahoma. Governor Walton, fighting the Ku Klux at present, permits the people to decide by a referendum vote whether Walton has the majority back of him or not.

LLOYD GEORGE, as hostile to France now as he was friendly at Versailles, says what has been mentioned several times in the column in the past two or three years.

While Germany cannot arm herself, with France watching, she can supply Russia with arms. Sooner or later Germany will supply the leader of a great Russian army with plenty of weapons, and capable officers. If that comes during Poincare's life, the French will feel toward him as they did toward Bazaine after the Franco-Prussian war.

SEEKS TO PART RICH BOY AND MOVIE 'VENUS'

RUBYE DE REMER

Movie picture actress, once called the "most beautiful blonde since Venus," whose affair with Ben Throop, son of a coal magnate, has brought detectives on her trail. The romance of the couple has been Hollywood gossip for a long time. Throop is married. His wife is abroad.

AUTO GOES WILD IN PEMBERTON SQUARE

Charles F. Scheele, No. 42 Warren street, Dorchester, attempted to turn his auto in Pemberton square today.

He threw in the reverse and backed over the curb into a 300-pound granite pillar which supports the street railing, knocking the pillar and a portion of the rail into an eighteen-foot drop, where it crashed through a stone sheathing below and landed in the coal bin at police headquarters.

The car hung on the edge for a moment, then slid back into the street, where it crashed into another car. Neither car was damaged to any extent.

In straightening things out Patrolman Paul Crowley noted that the registration plates and car did not fit. Scheele said he had only had the car a day and had not yet made a change in registration.

TRAIL BEAUTY AND MARRIED SWEETHEART

Los Angeles, Oct. 1 (By Universal Service)—Men from the Los Angeles branch of a national detective agency were rushed to Denver today to break up the love affair between Rubye de Remer, a moving picture actress, and Ben Throop, son of a Pennsylvania coal millionaire.

For several years the gay young Pittsburgh dandy and the movie star had been together in New York, Hollywood, Denver and other cities.

There is a wife—but she is in London—and it has been declared that she is unwilling to give her husband a divorce. There was a money settlement between her and Throop, it is said, in Hollywood, and, though she knew of the scandal she made no attempt to break it up.

The young couple have kept open house in New York, and have entertained many of the literati and many of the smartest of the smart society of that city.

KEPT TWO APARTMENTS.

It was declared, too, that Throop kept two expensive establishments furnished in Los Angeles, in one of which lived Miss De Remer's mother.

Rubye appeared in small parts. Nothing like the parts she used to have when she was younger and plumper—when artists voted her the most beautiful woman in America and producers were running around each other to get her signature to contracts.

And after the last little part had been finished they went back to New York. Then Rubye's father died—in the old home in Denver, and Rubye and Throop took the first train West.

It is declared that Throop's father knew of his son's infatuation for the woman who was the most beautiful of the land, but that he was unable to do anything about it.

RUBYE STAR OF THE PAST.

Now, however, it seems that the boy is ill—the victim of an unfortunate habit—and it is for this reason his father has hired detectives.

THOUSANDS OF ALIENS LAND HERE

Four Liners Bring First of the October Immigration Quota to Boston

The rush of immigrants to enter this country in the October quota was evidenced here today when four passenger liners, carrying approximately 5,000 passengers, reached quarantine.

They were the Anchor liner Tuscania from Glasgow and Londonderry, the Cunarder Samaria, and White Star liners Megantic and Celtic, from ports in Great Britain.

All except the Samaria were diverted to Boston by wireless after sailing to avoid the crush at Ellis Island, New York. The North German Lloyd steamship Derfflinger, from Bremen, with 800 passengers, which was diverted to Boston, was again diverted to Portland.

The Megantic came here by way of Halifax, where she dropped the bulk of her immigrants.

The Tuscania was the first ship to pass quarantine, coming up to her dock with 1210 passengers, all but seven of whom were citizens of the United States and immigrants from England, Ireland and Scotland.

A notable passenger on the Tuscania was John C. Sparks of New York, brother of Sir Ashley Sparks, head of the Cunard, Anchor and Donaldson lines in America.

Mr. Sparks, with his wife and daughter, Jocelyn, returned from a motor trip in Europe, accompanied by two blooded dogs, an Aberdeen and a Sealyham terrier.

The liner sailed within an hour for New York, with the majority of the saloon passengers still on board.

BITTER ROW WITH NEGRO REVEALED

Millionaire and Spy Got Into Dispute Over Cost of Hunt for "Witnesses"

(Universal Service)

Chicago, Oct. 1.—Letters which passed between Dan Nugent, New York attorney for W. E. D. Stokes, and Robert H. Lee, a negro employed in gathering affidavits to be used in the millionaire's divorce suit, it was predicted today, will play a prominent part in the investigation of conspiracy charges made by Mrs. Stokes.

Sufficient evidence already has been uncovered, Assistant State Attorney Wharton declared, to indict six persons.

Lee's letters reveal, according to the investigators, bitter disputes which arose between him and Nugent over the payment of the negro's expenses for conducting his search for witnesses to "prove" that Mrs. Stokes had associated with notorious characters in the old levee district of Chicago's underworld.

ONE OF THE LETTERS.

One of Lee's letters, dated September 2, reads:

"I am dropping you a line as you were, August 22, 1923, to see me at 11 a. m. at L. Fish Furniture Company, and promised to be back to see me without fail. Now I have lived up to my agreement with you.

"Am sorry to think that you as a business man have failed to keep your appointments with me. If you had come back as you promised, the whole thing would have been explained in the presence of all concerned.

"I don't have to go behind closed doors to say anything about anyone, because I am all man, and not a double-crosser, and about the two letters that I wrote you through the instructions of Joe Brunner, as you and Mr. Stokes both supposed to be double-crossing us all, for the words came from him.

Now I hope to meet you both face to face some day and clear myself of all unfair sayings about me. You were in Chicago August 31. Now if you are the man that I think you are, you will compensate me for my time as you promised. I am willing to let the whole thing drop as far as I has gone."

OBJETS TO TERM.

Mr. Nugent, in his reply, vehemently objected to Lee's use of the term "double-cross," and asked the negro for a statement showing the time he had expended on the case. The attorney's letter continues:

"I would also like to have a statement of just what you think you have accomplished in way of investigations and why you have not been able to obtain the information with regard to the undertaker who buried Walter Harris and whether or not you have facts to substantiate your statements to me that Mrs. Stokes visited the Pekin Cafe and that she was accompanied by Dan Jackson and George Spencer."

With a resumption this week of Grand Jury investigation into the conspiracy charges made by Mrs. Stokes, other important and sensational developments in the case will be brought to light, attorneys declared.

TROOPS END REVOLT IN GERMANY

Defeat Rebels in Battle Near Berlin; 21 Slain in Dusseldorf Clash

London, Oct. 1 (I.N.S.).—Martial law has been proclaimed at Kuestrin following a battle in which the Reichswehr defeated the German Nationalists, said a press dispatch from Berlin today. According to Berlin, fighting was in progress at 11 o'clock a. m. Kuestrin is fifty miles from Berlin.

Berlin, Oct. 1 (I.N.S.).—Reichswehr (German National Defense troops) today recaptured from the Nationalists the fortress of Kuestrin.

The latter had seized it in an overnight coup, taking the defenders by surprise. After their capture the Nationalists hoisted their flag over the citadel. When day dawned and the Nationalists' banner was seen Dictator Gessler gave orders to retake the fortress at any cost.

Reichswehr made a storm attack and dislodged the Nationalists without difficulty.

A military censorship has been imposed by Dictator Gessler over all news dispatches.

21 Dead, 200 Wounded, in Clash at Dusseldorf

Duesseldorf, Oct. 1 (A. P.).—French troops are patrolling the streets of Duesseldorf today, having assumed the entire responsibility of maintaining strict order.

A formal state of siege has not been declared, but the curfew law, tightly closing activities from 11 p. m. until 5 a. m., is being rigidly enforced.

These measures have been deemed necessary as a result of yesterday's outbreak at a Separatist meeting, resulting in the killing of twenty-one persons and the wounding of 200 others.

The French still hold the security police in a state of arrest pending a decision as to their responsibility for yesterday's violence.

Their investigation so far has shown that all the police who were on duty were men acting under proper authorization of occupation and that no civilian police participated in the trouble, as some of the reports have had it.

Outward quiet had been completely restored today, but a certain nervousness was in evidence among the populace. The French investigators are going thoroughly into the question of how the disturbance started and expect soon to announce their action toward the security police, which has been charged in some quarters with starting the shooting.

KLAN MEETINGG IN CHURCH IN SO. END

The Ku Klux Klan has been in Boston for six weeks holding Sunday afternoon meetings at the Shawmut Congregational Church in the South End, where a brother of Kleagle Farnsworth of Maine Sunday openly delivered an address in which he eulogized the object of the Klan, which he termed a "patriotic organization." On the platform were the Rev. Dr. Everett L. Farnsworth, E. A. Harrington, president of the Protestant League of Massachusetts and organizer of the Klan in Essex County, and a Chaplain Howard. Dr. Horatio S. Card, chairman of the board of trustees, said that he would not have allowed the renting of the church had he known that the Klan was to use it for meeting.

Decision to postpone the races came after inspection of St. Louis Air Field early today, which was flooded by heavy rains yesterday. Accidents were feared with a soggy field.

Bridgewater, Oct. 1.—Mrs. Caroline LaChance was killed on her way to church by an automobile driven by Miss Louise Dalboni, who was driving to the same church. Mrs. LaChance became confused while crossing the street and Miss Dalboni, who was driving slowly, according to witnesses, was not held responsible.

HEIRESS SEEKS HER KIDNAPED CHILDREN

New York, Oct. 1.—With the discovery by counsel for Mrs. Robert Howard Gamble that her two missing children, Bruce, three years old, and Howard, two years old, who were kidnaped from their home in Huntington L. I., are at the home of their paternal grandfather, Robert Gamble, at Jacksonville, Fla., came the announcement that the mother is about to open a fight in the Florida courts for the return of the children.

Mrs. Gamble's divorced husband has been absent from his residence here since the disappearance of the children. The authorities have been searching for him.

Mrs. Gamble, who was Miss Virginia Bruce Loney, heiress to a fortune of $1,500,000, was married in 1917 to Robert Howard Gamble, an ensign in the Naval Flying Corps. She obtained a divorce in Paris last July.

Gamble is a member of the brokerage firm of Prince & Whitney, No. 52 Broadway.

The princess is heartbroken over the death of her husband and refuses to see visitors.

PLAN TO LOWER APPALLING TOLL OF ACCIDENTS

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 1.—The mobilization of all community forces through State and city safety councils to curb the mounting toll of public accidents, the training of children in schools in the fundamentals of street and home safety, and the drastic requisition of criminally reckless drivers for the protection of the great mass of careful motorists and pedestrians were urged by 5,000 members of the National Safety Council in a resolution adopted at the opening session of the Twelfth National Safety Congress here today.

Deaths by accident number 80,000 a year and the injuries run into millions, the congress was told.

Among the directors elected for three-year periods were: L. D. Burlingame, Providence; C. E. Pettibone, Boston, and Dr. A. D. Rucker, Hartford.

CALIFORNIA BEAUTY WINS TANGO PRIZE AGAINST SPANIARD

AMERICAN AMAZES FRANCE; GORGEOUS GOWN DISPLAY

By C. F. BERTELLI.
Universal Service Wireless

Biarritz, Oct. 1.—Biarritz has its collective hat off to California today.

The languorous Spanish mantilla clad beauties have taken a back seat for an invasion of fresh tinted Western America girls who are beating the professional European coquettes at their own game.

The contest between the blonde Americans and the dark senoritas came to a climax at the far famed annual tango competition at the Casino where Lorraine Rowan brought glory to Pasadena, Cal., by winning the first prize after an exciting tussle with Juanita Minondo, Spain's "most graceful girl."

AMAZED BY AMERICANS.

Andre de Fouquierre, Paris arbiter of elegance, who awarded the prizes, declared that he was amazed that the Americans had beaten the Spaniards at the dance the Spaniards invented.

Barbara Brokaw, charming young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Brokaw, of New York, carried off the first prize in the fox trots.

Watching the contests and cheering the American contestants were Mr. and Mrs. John Drexel, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Emery, Lady Ribbledale, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Coxe and others socially prominent.

MARVELOUS GEM DISPLAY.

The week saw the season's unprecedented display of jewels revealed. It seems that some of the most prominent jewelers have approached many of the beautiful women, offering to let them wear the finest gems without charge, believing that human display much better for business than simply showing them on the plush cushions in their windows.

This new plan angered the rich society women whose necklaces and tiaras were their own, and the result is that many of the most prominent women are resolutely abstaining from wearing any jewel at all. Many declare that the jewelers' innovation may kill the value of pearls and diamonds for fashionable display."

Katherine Lane in Who's News Group, Declares Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN

ONE of the busiest members of the Manchester-by-the-Sea colony is Miss Katherine Lane, who makes an important addition for our "Who's News Along the North Shore."

Miss Lane is far more devoted to sculpturing than society, and she spends many hours of the day in the studio atop the stable of "The Chimneys," the attractive estate of her mother, Mrs. Gardiner M. Lane.

The clever young artist is especially fond of creating animals from the masses of clay with which she works. Critics praised highly her Rhinoceros at the exhibition of the North Shore Arts Association held this summer in Gloucester. This piece was done while the artist was studying in New York with Anna Vaughn Hyatt, who has been her closest guide and critic.

Miss Lane is very fond of dogs, and she has done some exceptionally fine work with these animals including great danes, shepherd dogs and Irish terriers. Horses, too, she has done, and there is one interesting model showing a panther tearing at his food.

At present Miss Lane is working on a large garden piece, showing a little figure of Pan playing his pipes and sitting atop a broken, grapevine-covered shaft, with young goats reaching for the leaves of the vine. Of quite a different nature is her model showing Salome holding the severed head on high. Besides, the talented sculptress has made a number of busts of her friends.

In November there is to be an exhibition of her work in Baltimore, in the Friends of Art Museum. Mrs. Lane was formerly Miss Emma Louise Gildersleeva of the prominent Baltimore family of that name, and she and her daughter are frequent visitors in the Oriole City. Mrs. Lane's town house is at No. 53 Marlboro street.

MISS MARY MINOT CABOT

Miss Cabot's recently announced engagement to George Rainsford of Rye, N. Y., caused a flutter of interest. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Brooks Cabot of Marlboro street and Dublin, N. H.

THE buds of 1920-21 received a pleasurable thrill of excitement when they learned that one of their fellow-debs, Miss Mary Minot Cabot is now the fiancee of George Rainsford Martin.

Miss Cabot—known as "Polly" to her friends—is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Brooks Cabot of Marlboro street and Dublin, N. H., and is very popular with her set. Her fiance, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Mulford Martin of Rye, N. Y., gave up his college career at M. I. T. for war service. He served in France with the coast artillery and was badly wounded during the fighting at the Somme. He has the Croix de Guerre with two palms and the Medaille Militaire.

Miss Cabot's two sisters are Mrs. J. Randolph Coolidge, 3rd (Anne Cabot) and Mrs. Morton P. Lane of New York. Her brother is Norman Cabot. The wedding day of the young people has not yet been announced, but the engagement is likely to be a short one.

EBEN RICHARDS has returned to his Winter home at Tuxedo Park, N. Y., while Mrs. Richards and their son, Eben, Jr., remain on through the month at "Harbor View," the Richards place at Pride's Crossing. There are some fine police dogs which guard "Harbor View."

London—Princess Giovanna, daughter of King Victor Emmanuel of Italy, has suffered a relapse, says a Central News dispatch from Rome. It had been believed that the Princess was almost convalescent from typhoid.

York, Pa.—P. A. Altland of Cincinnati, who eight weeks ago drank an ounce and a half of camphorated oil in mistake for castor oil, died today. Mr. Altland was believed to be on the road to recovery.

SUPER-UNION IS AIM OF A. F. OF L. IN CONVENTION

Portland, Ore., Oct. 1.—The development of the American Federation of Labor into a gigantic national super-union linking all working classes in a "crusade for industrial democracy," was proposed today by the executive council of the Federation in its 1923 report to the annual convention now in session here.

Complete unionization of all lines of industry and commerce through separate associations with a central body of spokesmen representing each group was the plan endorsed by the council. It was termed an "imperative need" for the improvement of American labor conditions.

INDICTS VOLSTEAD ACT.

The council went far afield in its report, touching upon social, economic, political and religious subjects. Its outstanding features were a bitter indictment of the Volstead Act, a renewed condemnation of the Ku Klux Klan and a plea for the unionization of American farmers.

Following is a summary of the salient features of the report:

Reports the successful "resisting employers in five years' war to destroy our labor organizations."

Condemns "State invasion of industrial life," citing the Sherman anti-trust law, the Esch-Cummins act, the Kansas State Industrial Court law and the Colorado industrial law as examples.

Demands an "industrial franchise for workers," similar to the existing political franchise.

Advises American farmers to organize trade unions.

Proposes Congress be empowered to re-enact by two-thirds vote any law declared unconstitutional by the United States Supreme Court.

FAVORS LIGHT WINES.

Postpones 1924 convention until November 17, 1924, because of Presidential campaign during Summer.

Condemns Communist propaganda in interests of an "amalgamation of world workers."

Indorses greater restriction of immigration.

Bitterly assails Volstead Act as a "social and moral failure which breeds contempt of all laws" but upholds the Eighteenth Amendment.

Favors enactment of light wines and beer amendment.

Enters politics by laying down platform for "favorable candidates" and urging fight for direct primaries.

Condemns the Ku Klux Klan as "un-American" and urges members not to join it.

Denounces organization of Fascisti movement in United States.

Urges repeal of Esch-Cummins Act and Sherman Anti-Trust law.

Launches new campaign for enactment of child labor and women's minimum wage laws.

Cops, Armed With Shotguns, Are Left Waiting

Two policemen in plain clothes, each armed with sawed-off shotguns, were stationed in every theatre and motion picture house in Boston when a tip was received at police headquarters that a gang of hold up men contemplated wholesale operations. No bandits appeared. A similar tip was received several months ago, and plain clothes men sent out. The tip proved to be false.

WIFE A VICTIM OF "ETERNAL TRIANGLE"

Mrs. Helen Christman, formerly of No. 504 Columbus avenue, South End, says she is the victim of the time worn "eternal triangle" that includes herself, Aramand Christman, her husband, and a young woman.

Mrs. Christman declared to the Boston American that her husband ran away with the other woman, leaving Mrs. Christman without money to care for their two children. One of these, Georgiana, aged eight months, is sick. Edward, two years old, has just recovered from a serious illness. The children are now depending upon the kindness of a friend of Mrs. Christman's for their daily food, Mrs. Christman alleges.

"I had my husband arrested last Monday for assault and battery," said Mrs. Christman. "Tuesday he was in Municipal Court, and was released when his case was continued until October 3. He went home and when I arrived he had taken all his clothes and left.

"I cannot support my two children. I have to stay with my sick baby or it will die. I cannot go out and work and stay with the baby at the same time. I want to find my husband. His place is here caring for his children. I do not care about myself. It is my children that I am thinking of."

HUSBAND RUNS AWAY WITH YOUNG WOMAN

MRS. HELEN CHRISTIAN

She charges her husband, leaving her and their two children without money, went away with a young woman. He was arrested last week for assault and battery on his wife's complaint.

HARMONY ON TOP IN BOSTON POLICE POST

Complete harmony exists between members of the Boston Police Post, American Legion, and officials of the Boston police department, according to Commander M. O. Patterson.

"We are well satisfied with the attitude now being shown by the police department executives," Patterson declared. "And furthermore, feel that they are with us whole-heartedly in our membership drive.

HOTEL CLERK IS SHOT; DEFIES HOLDUP MAN

William H. Millett, night clerk of the Hotel Preble, Court street, was shot down by one of three men who attempted to hold him up in the hotel.

The trio first asked for rooms and then suddenly demanded the money in the hotel safe, the clerk declared. Millett, who is sixty years old, says he refused.

His assailant drew a revolver and without warnig fired. Millett dropped to the floor with a bullet in his forearm. The trio then fled, he told the police.

Several hours later a man, arrested for drunkenness in Charlestown told the police that he knew "something" about the shooting. He was to be questioned on becoming sober.

The police, however, do not credit the hotel clerk's claim that the trio were robbers, believing that the shot was fired accidentally by a drunken man. Millett is at the Haymarket Relief Station.

ANCIENT MANSION DAMAGED BY FIRE

Marblehead, Oct. 1.—Fire caused damage to the William R. Lee mansion on Washington street, built in 1768. As the woodwork, hand-painted paper, and old furnishings are irreplacable, it is impossible to estimate the damage.

An electric flatiron is supposed to have started the fire.

SAFETY RAZORS FOR AMERICAN READERS FOR 36 CENTS

COMPLETE STANDARD OUTFIT

that the reader clip two coupons from the Boston American on two consecutive days and present these coupons with 36 cents at any of the numerous distributing stations. For that the reader will receive the wonderful razor, strop and case complete.

This is an offer that will appeal to husbands, wives, sons and daughters. No longer will it be necessary for a disgruntled husband to come home and find that friend wife has just "ruined" his last razor blade. For two coupons and 36 cents friend wife can own a razor of her own. Likewise the daughter. Likewise the son.

This is the first time in history that the great Auto Strop Razor Company has placed its wonderful product within the reach of the readers of any newspaper at such a phenomenal price.

The Boston American, always on the alert to provide benefits for its readers, has seized this opportunity to offer another benefit. The expense connected with the offer is tremendous. But the cost to the reader is trifling.

This Auto Strop razor is the very latest thing in razor manufacturing. It is small, compact and elegant in appearance. It is a boon to those who dislike shaving with ordinary razors. No more pulling, no more irritation if you use this razor. No more rubbing in of lather is needed. Only seventy-eight seconds is needed from the time you apply the lather until you are drying your face with the towel.

The razor and strop are packed in a small leather case that can be placed in the vest pocket, in the pocket of a hunting coat, or in a lady's handbag. The case is smaller than the ordinary spectacle case. For hiking, auto trips, hunting or fishing the razor may be carried in the pocket and takes up so little room that you hardly know it is there.

The razor is made for ladies as well as men. Ladies need not put up with the protests of their husbands regarding their use of the husband's "pet razor" any longer. Only two coupons and 36 cents will give the lady a razor and strop and will make her independent of friend husband.

The first coupon will appear in the Boston American next Wednesday, October 3. Coupons will be printed daily thereafter. On Wednesday the Boston American will also publish a list of distributing stations where the coupons may be presented and the razors secured. The main distributing station will be at the office of the Boston American, No. 80 Summer street. But there will be distributing stations throughout all sections of New England.

Razors will also be distributed by mail. Those sending coupons by mail will be asked to send four cents additional for postage, making a total of 40 cents.

Watch for the first coupon next Wednesday. There are safety razors on hand now, but they will go fast. Join the procession of husbands, wives, sons and daughters early, so you will be sure to get your razor.

Remember that this razor can be used by any novice. There is no chance of cutting the flesh. Each blade is good for from ten to fifteen shaves.

RELIEF FOR TIE-UPS

WOULD EXTEND STUART ST. TO AID TRAFFIC

Traffic Suggestion No. 7

The American prints today still another suggestion aiming to simplify Boston's baffling traffic problem. The reader suggests continuing Stuart street from Washington street, through High and India streets to Atlantic avenue.

"This would be a short cut to East Boston," says the correspondent, "and to the different steamship lines. It would take care of the tie-ups along Temple place, Winter, Bromfield and School streets, for traffic which comes into Tremont street and from Beacon into School street on the way to Post-office Square could be broken up and shot into Stuart street from Exeter street and then proceed off High street into Postoffice Square and the market district.

"I think this would work out after Exchange and Court streets are widened and would be all the street widening would need for some time."

$200 HOLDUP IN NO. STATION ON PHONY TIP

There's nothing dumb about Boston's burglars.

They circulated a tip that they were about to holdup every movie theatre box office in Greater Boston.

Police threw out a line of defence comprising detectives armed with sawed-off shotguns.

They stood under cover in the shadow of the moving picture theatre strong boxes. While they patiently awaited an excuse for action gunmen stepped into the North Station and staged a robbery unhindered.

A pair of bandits poked guns into the face of Axford C. Buck in the Armstrong Train Service Department, North Station, backed him into a closet, then robbed a safe of $200. They completed the job in two minutes.

The service is part of the train "butchers'" equipment. Boys selling wares on B. & M. trains are equipped there. Buck was on the job as cashier, for the first time. Thayne Tucker, a "butcher," living at 14 Heath street, Roxbury, happened in and released Buck. Police were called. Then the plot, not unlike a movie scenario, was revealed to the crestfallen detectives still holding shot guns at picture houses.

Buck lives at 166 Washington street, Malden. He works in a Portland street business house. He was "filling in" at the news butchers' depot for the first time.

The money taken was in two wooden boxes.

Police say the tip that bandits were to visit movie houses in automobiles and make a cleanup came from a legitimate source, in other words, from a reliable "stool pigeon."

FEAR SWITCHED BABY BURIED IN DRAIN PIPE

Detroit, Oct. 1.—Following the finding of a baby's coverlet in a sewer 200 yards in the rear of Alfonse Vlemminck's home in Grosse Point Village, police today searched the sewer for the body of the baby boy given to Vlemminck by mistake when he called at a hospital for the child born to his daughter, Yvonne.

This discovery, the first tangible clew in the mysterious disappearance of the infant, who Vlemminck asserts he gave to a stranger was made by Dan Henderson, a friend of William Greatrex, father of the child.

Henderson had been poking around the sewer all day Sunday with a hook fastened to a pole, when he made the discovery. He said there appeared to be an object in the sewer which he could not dislodge, it apparently being weighed down.

PROTESTS GROW OVER PUMPING STATION FALSE ECONOMY

MENACE OF BIG FIRE IS SEEN

City Officials Declare Boston Should Have Unlimited Water Supply

Protests against the refusal of the State Commission on Administration and Finance to appoint a helper at the pumping station of the Metropolitan Water Works at Chestnut Hill, continued to be made today.

Fire Commissioner Theodore A. Glynn and Francis X. Mahoney, Health Commissioner, declared that Boston is menaced by the false economy of the State commission.

William E. Foss, director of the water division of the Metropolitan District Commission, stated that the force at the pumping station is "inadequate for reliable service."

The present condition is due to the refusal of the commission to approve a requisition to fill a vacancy caused by the resignation of one of the helpers last Spring.

NO APPROPRIATION.

The commission, parading with pride to a saving of $27 a week in salary, said there is no appropriation out of which to pay a successor to the helper.

In the meantime, while cities and towns outside the Metropolitan district are suffering from a shortage of water, other employes are forced to do the work of the missing helper, neglecting many important duties.

"In the event of a big fire, Boston needs all the water it can get," said Fire Commissioner Glynn. "The saving of $27 a week in salary at the Metropolitan water station at Chestnut Hill would be very little as against the damage caused by a big fire.

"If you recall, a short time ago a water main burst on a bridge in the Back Bay district. Suppose such an accident occurred with a shortage of help?

CURTAILMENT SERIOUS.

"Anything that would tend toward a curtailment of Boston's water supply would be serious."

Health Commissioner Mahoney said:

"I hope that nothing will be done to minimize the supply of water in Boston. The city should not be put in a position to suffer regardless of any difficulties. Anything that would endanger the water supply of the city would be a menace."

Mr. Foss, in his report on the situation, said that prior to April 14 the force employed in the boiler room included a water tender, a fireman and a helper on each of the three watches.

Since that time, he added, the firemen on the third watch have been required to go to the bins and unload coal formerly brought to them.

INADEQUATE FORCE.

"Although I am of the opinion that the present force is inadequate for reliable service," said the report, "there appears to be no way to remedy that situation or to grant the request of the firemen so long as the Commission on Administration and Finance refuses to approve requisitions for filling the vacancies."

NOTED SHOW IN BOSTON

MORRIS GEST AND TWO OF HIS STARS

Noted New York theatrical producer is shown above with Mlle. Kommissaryevskaya (standing) and Mlle. Karabanova (in inset), members of stars in the big Chauve-Souris production.

PLAYERS FROM RUSSIA COME TO BOSTON

The wooden soldiers came to Boston when Morris Gest and his thirty-three members of the Chauve-Souris completed their first ride in an American railroad train and reached here from New York ready for their opening at the Shubert Theatre tonight.

Mlle. Karabanova, the Katinka of the wooden soldiers, and Nikita Balieff, who says he is the only Czar in the world alive today, headed the company. The female members all have most unpronounceable names. Here are a few: Mme. Kommissarjevskaya, Mlle. Koretskaya, Mlle. Alexeietzeva, Mlle. Deykharhandova.

Blondes are fairly evenly divided with brunettes, but one and all their tastes runs to fancy hosiery with lighter colors prevailing.

Nikita Balieff, "announcer" of the company, showed a keen interest in Boston. "Where was this tea party" was the first thing he wanted to know. He was assured that he would be taken to the historical spot.

Mr. Gest said that as soon as his mother was sufficiently recovered he was going to arrange to bring her and the other members of his family from Berlin to this country. A short time ago he was successful in bringing them out of Soviet Russia after four years of endeavor.

ASLEEP ON TRACKS; HIT BY LOCOMOTIVE

An unidentified man, believed to be an Italian, suffered a fractured skull when he was struck by a train on the Watertown branch of the Boston and Maine Railroad as he lay asleep near the tracks at the Mount Auburn pasture. The crew removed the injured man to the Cambridge Hospital. The train was in charge of Conductor J. B. Stewart of No. 70 Andrew street, Revere, and Engineer Thomas Orr of No. 10 Summer street, Charlestown.

LYNN WOMAN LEAPS 40 FEET TO GROUND

While talking to her mother and her husband in the kitchen of her home Mrs. Anna Bukwich, 28 years old, of No. 28 Linden street, Lynn, suffered an attack of hysteria and jumped from the third story window to the yard below, a distance of 10 feet. She was found unconscious by her husband, Thomas. She was sent to the Lynn Hospital where she was found to be suffering from multiple bruises and serious internal injuries. Her name is on the danger list.

Mr. Bukwich told the police his wife was subject to fits and that she was under the care of a physician.

MOTHER-IN-LAW HELD AS SLAYER OF BRIDE

Lawrenceburg, Ky., Oct. 1.—Mrs. Fannie Tipton, wife of an Anderson County farmer, is being held here without bond to await the action of the Grand Jury following the sudden death, September 18, of her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Jessie Thomas Tipton, eighteen years old bride of less than a month.

State witnesses in the examining trial of the elder Mrs. Tipton, who is charged with having poisoned her son's wife, testified the defendant had objected strongly to the marriage and that she had made threats against her daughter-in-law soon after the wedding.

Testimony was introduced to the effect the defendant had purchased poison the day before the girl died, claiming she wished to kill rats.

Dr. Linwood A. Brown, chemist at the University of Kentucky, Lexington, testified he made an examination of the victim's stomach and found poison. Two other doctors testified death was caused by poison.

Everett L. Tipton, husband of the dead woman, a State's witness, testified his mother had been opposed to his marrying, but said after the wedding she welcomed his bride to her home and treated her kindly.

CALLED FROM BED, BEATEN UP BY ANGRY REALTY CUSTOMER

Fitchburg, Oct. 1.—The door bell of the fashionable Abraham Rome home, No. 35 Bonteile street, was violently tugged early today. Rome, wealthy realtor, arose and answered the summons in nightshirt.

A second after he opened the door he was pulled onto the front porch, beaten and kicked and the nightshirt torn from his body. His screams sent his wife scurrying to the telephone for police. They arrived as Rome was being dragged to the sidewalk.

Edward Downey of No. 66 Kerry street was arrested charged with assault. He said, "This man gypped me in a real estate deal. He won't forget it in a hurry."

He was arraigned in court today.

One Beauty

That millions now cultivate—The beauty of pearlier teeth

This invites you to make a test which delights all dainty people. To learn the way which millions know to whiter, cleaner, safer teeth.

You owe it to yourself. You owe it to your family and friends. Careful people of all nations are turning to a new teeth-cleaning method. Learn what it means to you and yours.

The fight on film

Dental research proved that film is the cause of most tooth troubles. And the cause of dingy teeth.

Film is that viscous coat you feel. Despite the tooth brush, much of it clings and stays. It becomes discolored more or less, then forms cloudy coats. That is why teeth lose luster.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Very few people, under old methods, escaped these film-caused troubles.

New methods now

Now dental science has discovered effective film combatants. One disintegrates the film at all stages of formation. One removes it without harmful scouring.

Able authorities proved these methods by many careful tests. Then a new-type tooth paste was created to apply them daily. The name is Pepsodent.

Leading dentists everywhere began to advise its use. As a result, careful people of some 50 nations are employing it today.

Pepsodent does other things essential. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralize mouth acids. It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits.

Protect the Enamel

Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

No smoke stains—No cloudy coats

The stains of tobacco lodge in film. So do food stains. That is why teeth cease to glisten. That is why so many seek to hide their teeth.

The modern way is to fight that film. Combat it every day. Fight those coats and let the natural luster show.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth become whiter as the film-coats disappear.

You will gain a new conception of what clean teeth mean. You will gain results you would not go without. You owe yourself this test. Cut out coupon now.

Those are Nature's great tooth-protecting agents in the mouth. Every use of Pepsodent gives them manifold effect. These combined results are bringing a new dental era to the people who use it.

SCIENTIFIC TESTS PROVE MERIT OF FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE

Remarkable Analysis by Harvey A. Seil, Ph D., Eminent New York Scientist

Declares the Pure Food Elements Are So Perfectly Blended by Exclusive Process that It Is "One of the Most Valuable Nutrients Known"

HIGHEST QUALITY INGREDIENTS SO PREPARED THAT THEY ARE EASILY TAKEN UP BY WEAKENED SYSTEM

Report Also Proves that Father John's Medicine Contains No Alcohol or Poisonous Drugs

The strongest proof of the merits of Father John's Medicine is contained in a statement recently issued by one of the best-known analytical chemical research laboratories in New York City.

These experts, Seil, Putt & Rusby, of 128 Water St., New York City, nationally known for their eminent standing in their profession, have made an exhaustive analysis of Father John's Medicine purchased in the open market, and they have issued certificates of their analysis which definitely prove the claims which the manufacturers of Father John's Medicine make as to the value of this old-fashioned body-building tonic.

They tell it plain, everyday language of the different findings they have made, all of which go to prove that Father John's Medicine is unequalled as a body builder.

Analysis Begins

The survey started with the visit of Dr. Harvey A. Seil to the laboratory and executive offices of the Father John's Medicine Co. in Lowell, Mass. There the doors were thrown open to him and he was told to go about his work unhampered. Dr. Seil was a former government analyst in the service of the Food and Drugs division.

While in Lowell he procured samples of every one of the many different raw materials which go into the finished product. He also took samples of Father John's Medicine itself just as it was being packed for shipment. In addition to this the analyses later procured many samples of the medicine in different cities without identifying themselves to the druggists and without the knowledge of the manufacturer as to the time and place of the purchase.

The certificates of analysis were issued after every one of these different samples had separately been put to the most rigid and thorough tests.

Ingredients of the Very Highest Quality

Concerning the quality of the ingredients which make up Father John's Medicine, Seil, Putt & Rusby commented as follows:

"The analyses of the finished medicine and the quality of the ingredients found therein checked closely with the original analyses of the materials which we first sampled at your Laboratory during our inspection of your manufacturing process. The 7 ingredients so found are all of great quality, as determined by the standards of the United States Pharmacopoeia."

The fine quality of the cod liver oil used in Father John's Medicine so impressed the analysts that they made this special statement:

"The cod liver oil used deserves our favorable comment because after a thorough test of the oil used in Father John's Medicine, we can state that we have never examined finer cod liver oil and it retains its excellence in the finished medicine as we found it."

Medicine Remarkably Uniform in Composition

In preparations of this nature it is a common occurrence that the percentages of the different ingredients in the medicine to vary somewhat as compounded from time to time. The following fact is therefore especially significant:

"These analyses show conclusively that there is a remarkable uniformity in the composition of the medicine, for the percentages of the various ingredients including cod liver oil shows but a slight variation throughout the entire series of bottles analyzed."

Concerning the degree of fineness the report states:

"Cod liver oil is present as the most active ingredient of this medicine in an unvarying percentage by volume. This oil is broken up more completely than in any other medicine we have ever tested of this type. The oil particles have been so minutely divided by the manufacturing process that when examined through the microscope the drops vary in size from four microns in diameter to particles so small that they are ultra-microscopic, many particles being as small in diameter as one-tenth of a micron or one two hundred and fifty thousandth of an inch.

"This fine division of the oil particles is a direct measure of the perfection of the manufacturing process.

Is Finer Than Milk

"A comparison with milk in this connection is of interest. Milk, as the world knows, is an emulsion of butter fat and is often described as Nature's most perfect emulsion, but the emulsion particles of milk, as pointed out by Leach and Winton, which our analysis confirms, vary in size from one to ten microns, with an average of about five microns. Many of the oil particles in Father John's Medicine are only one-tenth the size of the particles which are found in milk. Since the value of cod liver oil as used in this medicine is that of a nutrient, its rate of absorption and assimilation (by the digestive system) depends directly on the ease with which it is first converted into emulsion form for absorption through the intestinal walls through the lacteal glands. In this preparation, the cod liver oil seems to be emulsified to as high a degree as seems now possible by mechanical means, and this should facilitate its absorption."

The foregoing statement unquestionably proves Father John's Medicine to be of great value as a body builder. The medicine is so finely divided that it is easily absorbed even by weakened digestive systems and that is one of the reasons why people grow healthy taking this pure food medicine.

Micro-Photograph of one-hundredth of a drop of Father John's Medicine magnified five hundred times.

Remains Unchanged Over Long Period

It is reassuring for mothers to know that there is little danger of the medicine changing in form. Concerning this important point, the chemists say:

"The fact that the medicine has been examined not one gave any indication of oil separation in the emulsion indicates that the emulsion is a stable one, and in preparations which we have reason to believe are more than a year old."

Again quoting from the analysis:

"After making these tests, analyses and careful examinations among the various samples examined we conclude that Father John's Medicine is a preparation of the purest cod liver oil, pleasantly flavored, permanent in form and absolutely free of alcohol or drugs of any kind."

Why It Is the Greatest Body Builder

"In the light of our present knowledge, it seems to be unquestioned that cod liver oil, especially when given in palatable form such as Father John's Medicine, is one of the most valuable reconstructive nutrients known."

No stronger proof than the foregoing signed statement can be given. The original of the certificate of analyses from which these quotations have been made is open to inspection at any time at the executive offices of Father John's Medicine Laboratory at Lowell, Massachusetts.

Dr. Seil's Own Summary of the Report

NOTE: Among the samples of Father John's Medicine examined by Seil, Putt & Rusby, many were purchased in different cities without the knowledge of the manufacturer.

1. "All of the ingredients are of the first quality as determined by the standards of the U. S. Pharmacopoeia.
2. "We have never examined finer cod liver oil than that used in Father John's Medicine.
3. "There is remarkable uniformity in the composition of the medicine, there being slight variation, if any, in the percentages of the ingredients used.
4. "The cod liver oil is broken up more completely than in any medicine we have ever examined of this type, some particles being as small as one two hundred and fifty thousandth of an inch in diameter.
5. "This fineness facilitates absorption by the digestive organs." This fact establishes the value of Father John's Medicine as a body builder.
6. "The preparation is permanent in form—it does not separate or break down over a long period of time.
7. "From our analyses we have found that Father John's Medicine contains neither alcohol nor dangerous drugs in any form.
8. "In the light of our present knowledge, it seems to be unquestioned that cod liver oil, especially when given in palatable form such as Father John's Medicine, is one of the most valuable reconstructive nutrients known."

'GENTLEMEN' THIEVES LOOT LYNN HOME

"Gentlemen" burglars credited with numerous robberies in Lynn, confronted Mrs. Harold S. Russ, suite No. 11, No. 22 West Baltimore street, in the wealthy residence district of Lynn, and commanded her at the point of a gun to "please hold up your hands." Mrs. Russ attempted to block the exit, but the men escaped.

Mrs. Russ entered her suite after visiting with friends during the evening and found her living room had been rifled. As she came to the bath room two men, about twenty-five years old, confronted her and told her to hold up her hands. Mrs. Russ stood her ground and called for help. The men dashed past her.

TENANTS GIVE ALARM.

Other tenants of the building, running to answer Mrs. Russ' calls, saw the two men leave the building and turn up Newhall street, calling "police" as they ran.

Mrs. Russ reported the theft of $13 in money, jewelry and other valuables.

According to the police, it was probably these two "gentlemen" robbers who hog-tied and bound Patrick Smith, manager of the Lynn office of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company in his apartment on Newhall street, Lynn, two weeks ago, and robbed him of money and jewelry. The men escaped in an automobile driven by a girl.

The same men, working with the woman, are believed to have robbed a woman's apartment in High street, Lynn, of expensive clothing and jewelry. On that occasion, a woman's pocketbook, containing cigarettes and a dainty handkerchif, was found in the hallway.

MISS BAUMAN AND 'JILTED' SUITOR VANISH

Miss Helen Bauman, who on Thursday last jilted her sweetheart, Howard G. Quill, and who has been missing from her home since Friday, is believed by her father to have eloped with Quill. Quill is missing from his home.

Last Thursday Miss Bauman announced that she was through with Quill. The next day, according to her father, she was as friendly with her persistent suitor as ever.

"I wouldn't be at all surprised if she had gone and done it," said her father. "She hasn't been here since the day after she jilted Quill, and I can't say I'd be displeased to learn she had married him. The only reason I opposed the marriage at first was that I had not been informed of their attentions."

Miss Bauman lives at No. 28 Mozart street, Jamaica Plain. She is twenty years old. Quill lives at No. 772 Dorchester avenue, Dorchester.

TWO MEN DYING FROM POISON BOOZE

Five unidentified men, two of them dying, are at the City Hospital suffering from the effects of drinking poisonous liquor. A total of eighteen men and women were treated for alcoholism during the past twenty-four hours.

One of the men, about 30 years old, had also received a possible fracture of the skull. He was picked up by the police at Tremont and Harefield streets, Roxbury. The other man who is dying was found in the doorway of No. 112 Castle street, South End. The remaining three were all found in the South End.

1 DEAD, 14 HURT IN OVERTURN OF TRUCK

Providence, Oct. 1.—One man was killed outright and fourteen others injured, three of them seriously, when an automobile truck bearing them from their homes in Westerly to an Italian observance in this city overturned while rounding Douglass Corner on Tower Hill, North Kingston. Leonard Brogena, the driver of the truck, is locked up at the Kent County jail, under a charge of manslaughter.

The dead man was Alphonse Aconfono, fifty-five years old, of Westerly. He was married for the second time less than a month ago and is the father of several grown children.

BEETHOVEN IN RAGTIME AT MASQUERADE

Shades of Beethoven!

His famous "Moonlight Sonata" in ragtime!

It will be played that way at the Boston American comic supplement masquerade in Crescent Gardens ballroom next Thursday evening. Not only will the delightful music of this great master be arranged for modern dancing, but the compositions of Wagner, Mozart, Mascagni and other leading composers be arranged in fox trot, one-step and waltz time.

In this manner the management of Crescent Gardens believes it is doing pioneer work in spreading a liking for good music among the masses.

Requests for free tickets for the masquerade continue to pour in on the Comic Carnival editor. They are being sent to every person filling out the coupon printed on this page. These tickets are valued at $1.65 each. There will be no charge for checking clothes. The only expense of the persons who receive the special tickets will be carfare to and from Revere Beach.

Every person taking part in the masquerade dressed as one of the characters in the Boston American's comics will have a chance to win one of the twelve gold prizes. The sum of $100 is to be given away for the best or funniest costumes.

Crescent Gardens orchestra of 12 musicians, led by Karl Rhode, will play for general dancing from 8 to 11:45 p. m.

AUTOISTS ARE WARNED AS TO LIGHTS

The following instructions have been issued by Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank Goodwin to the inspectors of his department:

"October, the 'death month,' is upon us. Today, October 1, we go back to standard time and it will become dark one hour earlier. Thousands of motor vehicles, particularly trucks, with improper lighting equipment, will be hurrying home through crowded sections of cities between the hours of 4 and 6:30. This is the period of the day when most of the pedestrians and children are killed.

"I hope you will report at once every person who operates a machine at an unreasonable rate of speed in streets where pedestrians or children are numerous, or past intersections of streets. Also take the number of every motor vehicle without proper lighting equipment and send it to me. The licenses of careless operators will be suspended, and vehicles not equipped properly will have plates revoked at once.

"Get the aid of the police if you can. Last October seventy-nine persons were killed by motor vehicles in Massachusetts, and we must do all we can to stop this slaughter."

2 WOMEN HIT BY AUTO AND INJURED

Both women were taken to the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, where Mrs. Forbes was found to have received a compound fracture of the right ankle. Mrs. Peters was held for observation.

Looking at the new touring car from the side, you are at once favorably impressed with the effect of longer, more graceful lines secured by enlarging the cowl and raising the radiator.

Slanting windshield and one-man top lend material aid in giving the entire car a lower, more stylish appearance.

An apron connecting the radiator with the fender skirts is also a decided improvement.

A comfort feature much appreciated by owners, is the additional leg room provided by the enlargement of the cowl.

Posse Goes After House of David Chief Whom Women Accuse

Benton Harbor, Mich., Oct. 1.—Gladys Bamford Rubel and Ruth Bamford Reed, former members of the House of David colony, who have brought statutory charges against "King" Benjamin Purnell, accompanied a raiding party of more than fifty State police, deputy sheriffs and newspaper men in a fruitless search for the missing cult leader, who fled when he learned of their coming.

"The posse reached the colony before daylight, after throwing a cordon about the place and posting guards on all highways leading to it.

Miss Rubel and Miss Reed, familiar with the colony, conducted the raiders through the halls and corridors of Shiloh House, the temple home of Purnell.

Search was made for the secret passages, chambers, subterranean tunnels and other well-hidden means of exit the "King" is supposed to have maintained for those times when he was pressed by the police.

The one-man grand jury investigation at the House of David colony will be resumed at St. Joseph's tomorrow, it was announced by Assistant Attorney General Homer Cuse.

Registration of babies goes steadily on. In St. Louis, Scranton, Salt Lake City, Denver, and other cities, which have held baby conferences, the newspapers together were not able to do as much for baby welfare as the American alone has done in Boston.

The contest has suddenly developed into a "keeping up with the Joneses" affair.

For Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Jones of No. 18 Robson street, Jamaica Plain, have a trio of prize winning kiddies entered. There is Flora, eight and one-half years old. She has won sixteen prizes for beauty and physical perfection.

Then there is Viola, six and one-half years old. She has won twelve prizes at various shows.

Now comes Ralph, Jr., four and one-half years old, entering a show for the first time with his mother confident that he will keep up with the Joneses.

COP CLIMBS TREE TO RESCUE CAT

Motorcycle Officer Daniel M. O'Connell of the Somerville police climbed to the top of a 30-foot tree opposite No. 25 Pennsylvania avenue, East Somerville, where he rescued a cat, whose cries had disturbed the neighborhood all night.

D. M. O'Connell

While Patrolman Louis F. Arnold held a ten-foot ladder, O'Connell climbed up the ladder to the first branch, and the rest of the way hand over hand. Former School Committeeman Thomas A. Kelley took the cat into his home at No. 39 Pennsylvania avenue.

SIX BRUISED AS AUTO HITS TROLLEY POLE

Six men were badly shaken up and bruised when an automobile capsized on Massachusetts avenue, East Lexington, and smashed into a trolley pole, near Oak street. William T. Kerrigan, 20 years old, of No. 16 Parker Hill avenue, Roxbury, was arrested for operating a car so as to endanger the public.

U. S. LACKING IN AIR SUPPLIES, SAYS NEW

St. Louis, Oct. 1 (AP).—The annual meetings of the National Aeronautical Congress and the air institute of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce began today.

Howard E. Coffin of Detroit, president of the National Aeronautical Congress, urged the United States to keep on an equal basis in aerial strength with foreign nations, which he said have appropriated huge sums for aircraft building programs.

Legislation regulating civilian flying so that the public may become confident that commercial aviation is not as dangerous as pictured as the result of stunt flying was urged by Glenn L. Martin of Cleveland, vice-president of the congress and an airplane manufacturer.

The United States is in a "cruelly paradoxical position with regard to aircraft," Postmaster-General New asserted in a paper prepared for the air institute.

While the United States leads the world in aviation records, "in quantity of supply we are lamentably and almost pathetically deficient as contrasted with most of the other first class powers," he declared.

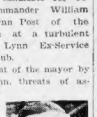
"It is apparent to all," he continued, "that the American people are by character non-militaristic. They do not care to think of war, the possibility of it, even insurance against it, or to pay the slightest attention to the requirements for protection until war is actually upon them.

"They placidly regard the country's economic resources as sufficient to protect them."

BIG UPROAR AT LYNN VETS' MEETING

Mayor Harland A. McPhetres of Lynn was termed an enemy to ex-service men, and called upon to withdraw as a candidate for re-election by Commander William Dunn of the Lynn Post of the American Legion at a turbulent meeting of the Lynn Ex-Service Men's Political Club.

The arraignment of the mayor by Commander Dunn, threats of assaults upon one another by members and a continued uproar so violent that at one time it seemed as though the police would be called to suppress it featured this meeting.



Mayor McPhetres

PHELAN TURNED DOWN.

The meeting was held in Spanish-American War Veterans' Hall and was called to endorse a candidate for mayor.

Attorney John V. Phelan, a veteran of the World War, and a former supporter of Mayor McPhetres, was refused the endorsement by a margin of four votes. Phelan's name was presented by Commander Dunn, who said that Mayor McPhetres "took pleasure in giving the soft jobs in Lynn to the wealthy residents of the city instead of to deserving service men." He declared that the Mayor had appointed only two service men to office since he has been Mayor.

SEVERAL KNOCKED DOWN.

Eben Sears, a Lynn constable, was called upon to throw two disorderly members out of the meeting, but he refused.

Frank O'Reilley, vice-president of the service men's organization, was told by the members to get out of the chair. William Regan, who took his place, met with no more favor.

When the name of Phelan was presented for the endorsement, friends of Mayor McPhetres arose and shouted "frameup."

Several men were knocked down in the disorder that followed.

The feeling was so intense that presiding officer Regan asked for all those who supported Mayor McPhetres to go to one side of the hall, and all those favorable to Phelan's candidacy to step to the other side. Fifty-four lined up for McPhetres and forty-eight for Phelan.

BOY BURGLAR IS TAKEN IN HOUSE

Hearing a noise in another room of his apartment at No. 3920 Washington street, Roslindale, J. J. Shields rushed in and seized fourteen-year-old Hyman Tinnebaum of No. 120 Ash street, Chelsea. Two other boys made their escape. Tinnebaum was arrested charged with the larceny of property valued at $20.

The apartment of H. J. Files at No. 3983 Washington street, also was entered. Liberty bonds and property valued at $300 were taken.

REFORM IN CHURCH WORK IS PREDICTED

Rev. Vivian T. Pomeroy of Bradford, England, who says that "Protestantism is losing its power," will address the Boston ministers today in the Church of the New Jerusalem, Bowdoin street. This English Unitarian claims that a new reformation is coming in the churches and will put in the shade Luther's Reformation of the fifteenth century.

Rev. V. T. Pomeroy

Pastor Pomeroy is one of the most liberal religious leaders in his country and hopes to stir up Boston over this new reformation.

REVOKE LICENSES OF 215 IN LAWRENCE

Lawrence, Sept. 30. — The observance of safety week ended here with the revocation of 215 automobile licenses and registrations, by tomorrow many prominent Lawrence auto owners will have received notice from the State Registrar of Motor Vehicles to the effect that they have lost their right to operate cars. The chief offense charged against the autoists is improper headlights.

The revocation of licenses and registration is the result of the drive against law violators waged by the State Registry.

SCYTHIA BACK IN DOCK; ALL ON BOARD SAFE

Liverpool, Oct. 1.—The White Star liner Cedric and the Cunarder Scythia, which collided during a dense fog Sunday morning off South Ireland, arrived in the Mersey today, the Cedric having continued her inward-bound voyage from New York, and the Scythia, outward-bound for Boston, with 2,000 passengers putting back here.

The Cunarder has a rent in her starboard side forward, eight feet wide and twelve feet to fifteen feet deep above the waterline. She had a list as she lay at anchor, probably due to the shifting of the cargo. All on board are safe.

The Cedric, which also anchored in the river, apparently was not so badly damaged. Her passengers will be discharged by tender in mid-river.

Captain Trant, commander of the Cedric, said the collision was unavoidable in the fog that prevailed. The damage to the ship was superficial, he said.

Perfect order was maintained on the Cedric, her commander stated. The Scythia, he said, loomed out of the fog, making straight for the liner's port side. His officers displayed fine seamanship, but were unable to avert the collision.

There were several narrow escapes among the passengers, many of whom on both liners were on the decks when the collision occurred.

CHARLESTOWN MAN DIES IN HOSPITAL

William J. Murphy of No. 15 Parker street, Charlestown, died at the Haymarket Square Relief Station from a fractured skull, which he received, the police say, by falling from the Perkins street bridge, in the Sullivan square section, to the ground, a distance of about 12 feet. He was 38 years of age and unmarried.

SMOKY OIL BLAZE STIRS STATE HOUSE

State House employes were excited today when waves of dense black smoke poured out of the Derne street entrance. Someone notified the fire department and Chemical 1 responded. The fire, caused by two cans of oil in the pit of the boiler room, had been extinguished by State House firemen when the city fire fighters arrived.

Year's Best Selling Novel Reveals Mysterious Return of Youth and Beauty to Old Woman

START THIS BEST-SELLER HERE TODAY

A young and beautiful woman creates a sensation at a first night in New York by rising in her seat at the theatre and coolly surveying the audience through her glasses, after the European fashion. Lee Clavering, a brilliant newspaper writer, is immediately interested, and learns she is the image of a former society belle, Mary Ogden, though much younger than she should be at that time. He makes her acquaintance and finds she is Countess Josef Zattiany. He nearly guesses her secret. He asks her to marry him. He takes her to a gay studio party, after which she invites him home to hear her story of renewed youth. He is stunned by the revelation. Meanwhile, Janet Oglethorpe, flapper daughter of one of Clavering's intimate friends, confesses her love for him. Then Madam Zattiany agrees to marry him and they plan their honeymoon. A camping party is given in the woods, during which Count Hohenhauer from Austria goes to see Mary.

READ ON. THE THRILLS COME FAST

"I am in love—more than I ever was"

"REALLY, Moritz! I hope you have not come up here to indulge in sentimental reminiscence. Why rake up that old—episode? I assure you I have practically forgotten it."

"And I can assure you that I never felt less sentimental. I wish merely to emphasize the fact that it was complete in itself, and therefore as impossible of resuscitation as the dead. Otherwise, you might naturally leap to the conclusion that I was an elderly romantic gentleman——"

"Oh, never! It is obvious that you are inclined to be brutally frank. But, as you said, time is short."

"If what I said sounded brutal, it was merely to remind you that love—the intense passionate love I have no doubt you felt for this young man who helps you to realize your renewed youth—never lasts. And when this new love is yours burns itself out—you never had the reputation of being very constant, dear Marie—you will have an alien young man on your hands, while that remarkable brain of yours will be demanding its field of action. You are European not American—why, even your accent is stronger than mine.

"That may be due to an uncommonly susceptible ear, but as a matter of fact your mind has a stronger accent still. You became thoroughly Europeanized, one of us, and—I say this quite impartially—the most statesman like woman in Europe. Your mind was still plastic when you came to us, and your plastic years are long over, ma chere. If your mind had become as young as your body you would have bitterly resented it. You were always very proud of that intellect of yours—and with the best of reasons."

Clare was staring out of the window. She recalled that she had faced the fact of the old mind in the young brain when she first discovered that she loved Clavering. How could she have forgotten . . . for a few short weeks—and up there? . . . She raised her eyes to the mountain. From where she sat she could not see the top. It loked like an impenetrable rampart, rising to the skies

"Can you tell me with honesty and candour," he continued in those same gentle tones that had always reminded her of limpid water running over iron, "—and for all your subtlety your mind is too arrogant and fearless to be otherwise than honest au fond—that you believe you could remain satisfied with love alone? For more, let us say, than a year?"

She moved restlessly. "Perhaps not. But I had planned to be in Vienna . . . He would spend only a part of the year there with me His own interests are here, of course. It would be a perfectly workable arrangement"

"Are you sure? If you are, I must conclude that in the mental confusion love so often induces, you have lost temporarily your remarkable powers of clear and coherent thought"

"Do you not realize that you would no longer be Gratin Zattiany, you would be Mrs. Clavering? Do you imagine for a moment that you could play so great a role in Austrian affairs you have set yourself, handicapped by an American name—and an American husband? Not with all your gifts, your wealth, your genius for playing on that complex instrument called human nature. Austria may be a Republic of sorts, but it is still Austria. You would be an American and an outsider—a presumptuous interloper."

She stared at him aghast. "I—oh—I had not thought of that. It seems incomprehensible—but I had never thought of myself as Mrs. Clavering. I have been Grafin Zattiany so long——"

"And your plans were well-defined, and your ambition to play a great role on the noblest European stage possessed you utterly until you met the young man—is it not so?"

"Oh, yes, but——"

"I understand. It must have been a quite marvellous experience, after those barren years, to feel yourself glowing with all the vitalities of youth once more; to bring young men to your feet With a glance and to fancy yourself in [illegible]

"Fancy!" She interrupted him passionately. "I am in love—and more—more than I ever was with you. Until I met him I did not even guess that I had the capacity to love again. It was the last thing I wanted. Abhorrent! But [illegible] he has become the one thing for me that you—not even you—never had [illegible] that I had given up as of finding long before I met you——"

Something in the coloring and heating of her face, in an intense desire to make him understand, but she knew not what, of her proud reserve swept in his garment that she had worn and flung at his feet, bared her naked to his ironic gaze.

He was leaning forward, regarding her through his veiled eyes. Their light was not ironic, but it was very penetrating.

"And what is that something, Marie?" he asked softly.

"I—you know those things cannot be put into words"

"If fancy they can. It is merely one more delusion of the senses. One of the most [illegible] most devil, it strikes. I had it for you and with it for me for a time. In the [illegible] and [illegible] or instead that supreme delusion is soon scattered [illegible] have——"

"But I believe it." She spoke obstinately, although that brave ring seemed to take on a note of desperation.

"Do you? Not in the depths of your clear brain. The mind on top is dense and but [illegible] alas for those mists."

"I refuse to discuss it," she said haughtily. "Why do you wish to marry me yourself."

"Because I need your partnership as much as you need mine. that she is the country of your deliberate adoption. A far more momentous thing than any mere accident of birth. You did not return to America when Zattiany died. You never even paid her a brief visit after your marriage. You would not be here now but for the imperative necessities of business. You are Austrian to your marrow."

"I had a role thrust on me and I played it. My parents came to Europe every year until they died. When Zattiany went, there were no ties to draw me back and habit is strong. But—underneath—I don't believe that I have ever been other than Mary Ogden"

She blushed as she said it, and he looked at her keenly

"I think I understand. He is a very [illegible] young man—of an outstanding excellence. I am told. Or it may be that he is merely in love, and love's delusions are infinite—for a time. I doubt if a young man with so brilliant an intellect would, if he faced himself in honest confession, admit that he believed anything of the sort. Nor do you, my dear Marie, nor do you"

She twisted her hands together, but would not [illegible] her eyes. He bent forward again and [illegible] harshly

"Marie! Listen inward. Do you see now or at [illegible] you to feel ashamed and foolish? Do you—you—fail to recognize the [illegible] of a woman of your mental [illegible] herself to fancy that she is experiencing the au[illegible] passions of youth? Mothers know a dose of
DR. CALDWELL'S
SYRUP PEPSIN
Will keep them fit

'First Aid' For Sick Children

THE experienced mother is not alarmed when a child becomes sick. She knows that most of the ailments of childhood are trifling. If it seems serious she calls a doctor, but whether or not she calls him she gives, first of all, a good laxative medicine. The doctor would advise that anyway. It is his "first aid." Such experienced mothers as Mrs. Everett E. Hunt of Belzoni, Okla., who has three children and never any sickness, and Mrs. F. B. Jukleniski of Prosser, Wash., always give Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at the first indication of sickness. Such timely doses have saved them much worry.

The Meaning of "Good"

All doctors agree that a thorough cleaning out of the bowels is of first importance for it removes dangerous intestinal poisons. They will also advise a "good laxative," and by "good" they mean one that is effective and yet harmless. They know that there are physics that never should be given to children - calomel, which is mercury and loosens the teeth; phenolphthalein, a coal-tar drug, that causes skin trouble; salts, which concentrate the blood and dry up the saliva. They consider Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin safe for all ages as they know it is a simple vegetable compound of Egyptian senna with pepsin and agreeable aromatics. The formula is on the package.

Give Laxative for Colds

Adults should have at least one movement of the bowels every 24 hours, and children two or three. Failure to have it means constipation, then headache, biliousness, dizziness, lack of appetite. Give a dose of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at bedtime, and there will be health and good feeling by morning. A dose costs less than a cent, and a bottle can be had at any drug store. Colds and constipation come together, so if you notice coughing or sneezing stop it at once with Syrup Pepsin.

WAYS OF A HUSBAND

SEQUEL TO "WHEN A GIRL MARRIES"

By Ann Lisle

"SHE isn't" sneered Jim.

"I'd like to know what you call this? Suppose I was planning a surprise for you? Granted I was sitting for the picture a great artist is painting and thought I'd take you to see it when the work is finished" Supposing I had a certain pride in being selected to help in such a big piece of work and wanted to spring it on you when it is an accomplished fact? Then where does Betty come in to get you all wrought up with her darn fool advance information?"

"Oh, Jim!" I said weakly

My protest was against his evading the truth with a series of suppositions. Jim accepted it as a token of my subscribing to his explanation.

"I can remember when you didn't think so much of my friend ship with Betty," he said, almost good-naturedly. "You were jealous of her in her time. And now you let her gossip get you going. By jove, you're so infernally jealous, Anne, that a man isn't to blamed for wanting to avoid mentioning any other woman to you" "Jealous!" I repeated bitterly "That's not it. You don't understand——"

"Now don't pull any of that 'misunderstood wife' stuff!" sneered Jim. "I understand too darn well"

"You don't!" I cried. "I haven't wanted to go stumbling across information about your actions But that time you went to Spring dale I was tricked into telephoning you by a message Rosa maliciously sent. You know how the knowledge that you'd gone off to spend a week-end in the neighborhood where Miss Gregory was staying was forced on me."

"Going to indulge in more postmortems?" asked Jim. "We've gone all over that two or three times."

"I know," I agreed. "But I was just reminding you that I hadn't let 'gossip get me' going." I had to face a painful fact at the time of the Springdale incident. It was more than your starting off about your own interests after you'd refused to go away with me——"

"That's right" snapped Jim. "Start nagging again. Dig up all the complaints you can think of I suppose you invegled me here to put me through the third degree. Well, let's have it

"I was just trying to say," I went on with pounding heart, "just trying to say that when I came to think it over I didn't mind your going to Springdale half as much as I minded your not telling me about it."

"I don't see [illegible]"

"It's what you must see," I broke in desperately. "It wasn't your not telling me that hurt, either. It was your not making me understand. You kept silent because you didn't think me a big enough woman to understand you. Jim, don't you see what I mean?"

"Yes, I guess I do," answered Jim grouchily. "I see that you enjoy splitting hairs. I know you're jealous as all outdoors, and so to avoid hurting you I don't go into matters that are all O. K. as long as one fool question doesn't make you look like three bits of scandal" And you top up in the air and make a grand gesture about having a big enough soul to permit a man any amount of freedom if he'll only come like a good boy and ask for it meekly. It's darn funny if you ask me."

"Nothing has ever been more serious between us," I protested. "What's the use of love and marriage if they don't rest on faith and confidence and understanding? Oh, Jim—why can't we be friends as well as lovers? Why can't we stand by each other?"

SECRETS OF HEALTH

NEW MENACE TO HEALTH

By Charles A. L. Reed, M. D.+
(Former President of the American Medical Association.)

YOU personally and all of us collectively are interested in everything that threatens health particularly all diseases [illegible] of the epidemic type.

The more disastrous of the epidemic diseases of the world are bred among the [illegible] insanitary conditions [illegible] under which they exist in the Orient, from which they have visited our shores

Asiatic cholera and bubonic plague are striking examples

One of the most deadly of epidemic diseases, however, comes from Africa

It is the so-called "sleeping sickness" of which the technical name is "trypanosomiasis"

It is caused by an organism, a germ called a "trypanosom," the native habitat of which is on the broad, hard, scaly backs of alligators and crocodiles

It is picked off the backs of these reptiles by one particular species of fly, known as the "tsetse fly."

The infection of tsetse fly lasts for twenty-five days and involves the whole body of the fly, the germs actively being particularly active in the salivary apparatus of the insect

When the infected tsetse fly bites the human subject it deposits some of its saliva loaded with trypanosomes under the protective cover of the skin

Here, first, the germs multiply, later reaching blood, where they multiply with greater rapidity

Savon Cadum

The great French complexion soap

Several months ago, Savon Cadum, The Great French Complexion Soap, was introduced in this community, through the leading stores. Previous to that, it could only be obtained by sending direct to Paris, France, which resulted in annoying delays to thousands of discriminating women who had become acquainted with the soap while abroad, and who could not do without it. Since its introduction here, Savon Cadum has met with one of the most phenomenal successes of anything introduced to the toilet trade in twenty years.

This great success is not surprising, when it is remembered that Savon Cadum is unsurpassed in imparting to the skin that soft, radiant, healthful glow—that "youthful complexion" so greatly desired and admired.

For many years, Savon Cadum has been recognized as the best of Europe's toilet soaps. It has long been the favorite of France's famous beauties, many of whom have written glowing endorsements of its qualities.

Savon Cadum is particularly well adapted to children's use. It is absolutely pure, and it acts like magic on their tender, delicate skins. Price, 25 cents a cake.

HARVARD OPENS WITH RHODE ISLAND STATE ON SATURDAY

NEXT EAGLE GAME ON OCT. 12

By NICK FLATLEY

Boston football fans discovered Saturday that two very good teams will perform hereabouts this season, and now all that is necessary to make the fall perfect is to have the Harvard machine do a few encouraging turns, when it gets its first shot of gas Saturday.

Boston College and Tufts lived up to all expectations, and for the dear old game, and there be plenty of experts who expect a whole lot from the Harvard team, even though Bob Fisher and his assistant coaches worry their heads off about the backfield.

Tubby Grew

The Crimson will not get much of a test against Rhode Island State, which has been flattened already, but a real game will give the boys a real line on some of the new backs that Fisher must try out, while he waits for some of his regulars to disentangle themselves from conditions.

Thus far the team has been worked with the indulgence a backfield of their own. That shows hat the bosses aren't any too sanguine that their incorrigibles will get over the examination line. If only two veteran backs reihly make the grade for the big games, some of the real miracles of the oft mentioned system will be necessary.

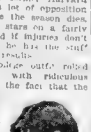
But that's part of the future. The facts remain that Frank Wanauch has one of the biggest teams in the land, all picked out to make a runaway race of it, and Boston College decided to show the world the real value of two forward passes with his Tufts crib.

George Brosden

Eddie's athletes uncovered a surprising number of good heaves against Lowell Textile, and we have an idea that the former Harvard flash will track a lot of opposition into defeat before the season dies. Eddie has a few stars on a fairly capable team, and if injuries don't wreck his array he has the stuff to get points of results.

The Rhode Island game will be over Providence, with ridiculous ease, considering the fact that the Invaders were fairly big and had been training especially for the contest. The Newton outfit played straight football throughout, not uncovering half a dozen plays.

It just showed in flashes that it had a great offense, two remarkable punters, Darling and Cronin, a great open field runner, Darling; a whale of a line smasher, Ward, and a pair of fine prospective quarterbacks, McNamara and McKenney.

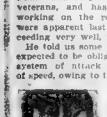


Jack Hammond

Cronin and Corcoran, two other freshmen who stepped into backfield work for the first time, also uncovered enough stuff to make it a sendpoint that Coach Wallace has trouble with his ball carriers. When Wilson and Bill Cronin, both injured, get back the Langis will be at least as well supplied as any team in the country.

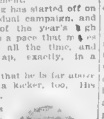
The B. C. line was the team's weakness a year ago, but as far as an opening game could show in the forwards will not bother much this Fall. The Major has a flock of veterans, and has evidently been working on the rough edges that were apparent last Fall. He's succeeding very well, too.

He told me some time ago that he expected to be obliged to change his system of attack because of lack of speed, owing to the loss of Connerford and Paton in the forward department. But he's found more speed, along with plenty of beef and experience, and is now ready for any sort of game.



Percy Jenkins

He has his guards coming back and getting into the interference, a pet play he can use again, owing to the speed of McManus, who was another two years like but is big enough now to [illegible]



Charley Hubbard

Duff, tackle, and Harrison, who showed at the wings, are all big and fast, and from where we sit it looks as if Cavanaugh principal work from now out would be polishing off, and teaching plays.

Both his youthful quarterbacks did themselves proud. McNamara got more snap and pep out of the team while he was in there, but it must be remembered that McKenney had to do his stuff before the natural nervousness of the opening had worn off, and the boys were keyed up.

The two kids ran their plays confidently, and [illegible] for a couple of recent schoolboys, showed remarkable knowledge of the difficult arts of interfering and backing up. Both were evidently in training for conservatism, for they took full advantage of Darling's remark [illegible] never did [illegible] punt and stepped out for keeps.

Both own great schoolboy records as runners, also. Before the year is out, the pair of them will have a merry battle to get the berth as a regular assignment.

Captain Darling has started off on a brilliant individual campaign, and should be one of the year's high scorers. He sets a pace that no [illegible] his team hustle all the time, and that's no handicap, exactly, in a leader.

Cronin proved that he is far above the average as a kicker, too. His boots were almost as long as Darling's, were perfectly placed and had plenty of height, as well. All in all the Lads [illegible] very satisfactory and one but regret that there aren't a few touch hurdlers on the schedule before Holy Cross comes to Boston.

CASEY REDUCES TUFTS SQUAD THURSDAY

That Tufts will be represented by a fighting grid team was proved Saturday when Eddie Casey's aggregation administered a sound thrashing to the Lowell Textile. Overhead football will be the Jumbo's constant threat this season.

Woof Tyler

Saturday the aerial attack completely baffled the Lowell team. Three touchdowns were scored by that route.

Casey will make his first cut in the large squad Thursday afternoon. Cleary will swing the axe on the line candidates. The Brown and Blue plays the Massachusetts Aggies on Saturday.

With Van French, Eteiman, Kennealy and Capt. Tyler playing their usual sterling game Tufts will be a hard nut to crack. This quartet will be responsible for most of the scoring that the Jumbo's will chalk up this season.

Nate Share, a former English high star, and Frank Hughes, a former Everett High player, did not start. Share suffered an injury in scrimmage but expects to return to his old position at guard next Saturday. Hughes will cover a backfield berth as soon as he recovers from an ankle injury.

Walter Cleary.

Captain "Woof" Tyler was all over the field and made brilliant tackles and will be rated one of the leading linemen in the East.

Carl Eteiman, the midget Jumbo quarterback, brought the huge crowd to their feet when he uncorked a 60 yard run for a touchdown.

Jimmy LeCain will coach the second team as soon as Casey makes his first cut. All candidates who get the axe will report to LeCain at the Tufts campus for their initial workout with the seconds. A schedule of seven games has been arranged.

Ollie Westcott's freshman outfit will open the season this week, Last Friday they scrimmaged with the Somerville High on the cubs. Bud Wilner, a transfer from the University of Maine, is one of the leading candidates for a backfield berth. He held down the fullback position for the Maine varsity last year.

Best School Game of Season on Saturday

By FRED C. LANE.

Joe' bow and especially because of their impressive victory over Boston [illegible]ege High, the Malden-Haverhill game at Malden next Saturday is the big topic in schoolboy circles.

Charley Dickerman

One of the largest early season crowds will fill the stands at the Malden Athletic Field to their full capacity. It is estimated that close to 7,000 spectators can be seated and Haverhill High supporters have made applications for half that number.

Malden High since it first tackled Haverhill has been better every year. Coach Jack McDonald has one of the fastest and best drilled teams that ever represented Malden and will make Haverhill travel fast.

Haverhill played and won over Providence Tech at the Stadium on Saturday, and although scored upon appear as formidable as the victorious eleven of last year which went through the season without a defeat.

Coach Dickerman held his team to line plunging throughout, as many Malden High scouts were in the stands

The Rhode Island line was snappy and fast. They held Haverhill several times when their goal line was threatened but could not withstand the terrific assault of Captain Ben Batchelder of the Haverhill backfield.

He is the player who will send Malden down to defeat even though they have one of the finest moulded elevens on the field today. Coach Dickerman has plays and formations that will baffle Malden. His reserve list of backs is almost as good as the first. When he saw that the game was won, he sent in a quartet of backs who would be first string men on any other scholastic eleven.

On performances Haverhill should win and win handily. Malden got the breaks in their set-to with the Maroon and Gold team.

On Saturday Haverhill made only two bad plays. One was a bad pass and the other a dropped ball. However, both were recovered.

Charlie Holden, Malden right end, seems the only line player that may make the going hard for Haverhill. He is one of the finest schoolboy ends playing the game today.

Haverhill showed to advantage on the defence. Malden was also strong in this respect.

It bids fair to be the best school contest of the season, despite the early date. Haverhill and Malden had a week to condition and are at the top of their form.

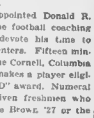
NORTON HEADS DARTMOUTH'S ATHLETICS

Hanover, N. H., Sept. 30.—Max A. Norton, '19, was elected to the position of graduate manager of athletics by the Dartmouth athletic council. Norton was formerly assistant graduate manager. He has been acting as graduate manager since the resignation of Horace G. Pender, '97, during the Summer.



Russell Hubbard

Incidentally the selection of the council places one of the youngest men in any college as head of its athletic department.

J. F. Gilman, '05, of Boston, was re-elected president of the council, and Prof J. P. Richardson, head of the political science department, was chosen secretary.

The council appointed Donald R. Moore, '23, to the football coaching staff. He will devote his time to the training of centers. Fifteen minutes of play in the Cornell, Columbia or Brown game makes a player eligible for the full "D" award. Numeral award will be given freshmen who play in either the Brown '27 or the Princeton '27 contests.

Full time in the Princeton, Harvard or M. I. T. encounters is the limitation for soccer letters.

Participation in the triangular cross country meet with Harvard and Maine, or the dual meet with Cornell, or the quadrangular meet with Cornell, Columbia and Penn, with certain place limitations, will be necessary for runners seeking the C. C. award.

YALE'S OPENING WITH NORTH CAROLINA

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 1.—Reports from Chapel Hill, N. C., the home of the University of North Carolina, are to the effect that the team which opens the football season with Yale in the Bowl on Saturday, is fully as strong as the team which did so well against Doc Jordan's team a year ago.

Charley O'Hearn

Of the men who faced Yale last year, Hill Blount, at center, and Morris, Johnston and McGee in the backfield will be missed, although good men have been developed to take their places.

"Red" Johnston, remembered by those who saw the game last Fall, was one of the best backs seen at New Haven in years. He is coach of the backs. Johnston got away from the Yale wings a lot and bothered the Elis a good deal.

North Carolina has a powerful backfield reserve a year ago, including Randolph, halfback, and McDonald, quarterback. He is available.

Other veterans who will face Yale Saturday are: Captain Roy Morris, end, McIver, centre; Hawfield, tackle, and Poindexter, guard.

Jack Merritt, backfield star, is ineligible, and his place will be filled by "Habit" Honeycutt, a man. Most of the line are veterans.

North Carolina expects to give Bill Mallory's team a hard fight.

White Fights Pal Moran

Charlie White, of Chicago, will fight Pal Moran at Madison Square Garden on Friday night. The contest is booked for 15 rounds.

Football Players of Saugus to Be Insured

Football players on the Saugus High School team will probably be insured against injury this season, according to persons prominent in school activities. This is the first time that football players have been insured against injury, so far as is known. The matter is now under consideration by the board.

It is pointed out that the athletic treasury is almost empty, and that in past seasons the expenses in caring for injured players have been heavy. In many schools, treatment for injury to a player is paid for by, and sometimes imposes a hardship on the boy's parents.

FULTON AND RENAULT IN BIG BATTLE AT THE ARENA

THRILLING TUSSLE IS EXPECTED

By JACK CONWAY.

Fred Fulton and Jack Renault, noble heavyweights, will furnish the excitement when they battle in the feature bout of ten rounds at the Arena A. C.'s show at the Boston Arena tonight. The rival punchers are on the scene of the conflict and prepared to produce a flock of thrills.

Boston and New England fans have been anxious to get a glimpse at a couple of big fellows in action since Dempsey and Firpo furnished their sensational quarrel. All of which caused Matchmaker Joe Goode to step forth into the pugilistic orchard and pick the Fulton-Renault plum.

FULTON BLESSED WITH GREAT LEFT HAND.

Fulton is one of those rare individuals who possesses virtually all of the qualities that go to make a great fighter. Other than in his matches with Dempsey and Miske, Fr derick has usually shown to advantage.

The big plasterer has been particularly successful in Boston. In his first encounter here, he slapped Sam Langford out of the picture. He later put the skids under John Lester Johnson.

Fulton possesses an amazing left hand. He is probably able to jab and hook with his left better than any fighter in the country. Fred also packs a healthy kick in his right, but does not call upon it as much as he does upon his left.

"BOY BANDIT" WILL GIVE FULTON CONFIDENCE.

"It said that the lack of a fighting heart has kept Fulton from reaching the top of his boxing division. The big fellow is now under the management of Jimmy Johnston and if there is anybody who can give a fighter confidence in himself it is the "Boy Bandit."

Johnston is of the opinion that Fulton will toss Renault for a loss tonight and then continue merrily along victory trail.

The Minneapolis warrior will have to step at a lively clip to win from Renault. The latter has been fighting in sensational form. He recently knocked out Tony Herman at Omaha, Nebraska. Prior to that tussle he whanged out a kayo win over George Godfrey, the negro heavyweight whom Harry Wills refused to fight.

It will be the second meeting between Fulton and Renault. Following Fulton's win over Floyd Johnson in Jersey, Fred signed to battle Renault at the Mik Fund s show in New York. It was a hard fight and the time Renault was declared the winner on a foul. This writer saw the bout and we didn't think at the time that any unfair blow had been delivered.

Naturally this has all added to the interest in tonight's quarrel.

Renault, incidentally, is managed by Leo P. Flynn, commander-in chief of the biggest army of boxers in the well-known universe.

ALEX TRAMBITAS AND SCHOENDORF CLASH

Alex Trambitas, who once gave Eddie Shevlin an interesting evening at the Arena, and who was a member of Jack Dempsey's camp at Saratoga, will have Jack Shoendorf of Milwaukee as an opponent in the semi-final of ten rounds. Schoendorf has engaged in some hard fights since coming East and should be able to make things interesting for Trambitas.

Willie Garo and Young Zarelli will box eight sessions, as will Lorry Malia and Young Donahue.

Reservations may be secured at the Arena Club's office, No. 39 Court street.

PAPYRUS RIVAL ASSAILED AS POOR CHOICE

Washington, Oct. 1. — Brigadier-General William Mitchell, assistant chief of the Army Air Service, sent a letter to August Belmont, chairman of the New York Jockey Club, protesting against the selection of Zev, Harry Sinclair's horse, to run against Papyrus, English Derby winner, for world supremacy of three-year-olds, without a previous race with My Own, owned by Rear-Admiral Cary T. Grayson.

In the letter to Mr Belmont, General Mitchell asserted that many persons, who cheered the original announcement of the international race at Belmont Park, October 20 are "dumfounded by the manner in which your club has chosen, or rather has neglected to choose, the American standard bearer."

General Mitchell cited the remarkable showing of My Own in the last few months, saying that he has won every race entered, including the Fort Edward Handicap and the Saratoga Cup. He criticized the club for counting the Lawrence realization to which My Own was ineligible, as a trial race, after refusal of Zev's trainer to run him in an elimination contest.

He continued:

"It was won by Zev under stress from the great Lily, Untidy. In this race Zev was reported to have lost a piece of his frog, and this argument was used as an excuse for his inability to run with My Own in a national trial sweepstakes on September 15 at Belmont Park, in which race My Own beat Untidy with ease and without any distress whatever.

"If Zev is not in condition to race on October 6, the date on which the Jockey Club's selection is to be made, the committee cannot justify the selection of him for the big race on October 20."

Jack Conway Picks Renault to Win over Fulton

Jack Conway, Boston American's boxing expert, who holds the world's record for picking winners, hands out the low down on tonight's quarrel at the Arena.

"Heavyweights are aces at the Arena," says Jack. "So get on the job early if you want to witness all the excitement. Jack Dempsey proved that heavyweight contests don't always go the distance.

"Jack Renault is our selection to win over Fred Fulton. Maybe this will surprise some of you fans who have seen fall Frederick win all of his Boston starts.

"Renault has been fighting in sensational form and we think he will keep right on winning tonight. Fulton is in fine condition and so may be relied upon to step fast from the bell. Joe Goode and Dave Posner both say it will be quite a quarrel. And both should know."

Jack has picked 99 winners out of a possible 118. Will he hit the century mark tonight?

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

Business is not booming, but it is holding its own, perhaps a little more.

The final quarter of the year promises to bring more activity than was experienced in the third quarter, but there will be no repetition of the feverish of speculation the first quarter.

And this is well.

The country could move along for a long stretch at the current rate, or even a little more rapidly, whereas the pace during the early months of this year invited inflation, collapse and disaster.

Confidence is entirely sounder than it was then and the outlook is decidedly more reassuring.

Events follow one another without breathing space, particularly abroad. The latest developments, however, have, on the whole, been encouraging.

Germany's announced giving in to France in the Ruhr ranks as the most momentous news of the last week. Its effect upon sentiment and investments has been almost somewhat offset by Bavaria's action in naming a military dictator, this being immediately interpreted as the first step towards separation. Germany's prompt appointment of a virtual military governor had, however, a restraining influence both in Bavaria and in the Ruhr.

France awaits deeds following Germany's conciliatory words. Germany is probably ready to go quite far in meeting French demands. Her volume of currency was trebled in one week, increasing from one quadrillion to three quadrillion marks, an utterly preposterous and ungovernable mass.

The British Premier's statement, after his talk with Premier Poincare, that a friendly atmosphere has been restored was received with great satisfaction by international interests here. Hopes have been strengthened that tangible, convincing progress can now be made in handling the reparation settlement.

* * *

Although our stock markets made no response to the better turn in European events, the principal foreign exchanges stand higher than they did a week ago, a fact worth knowing.

Most home developments have been favorable.

The latest railroad earnings statements are exceeding expectations. Another important railroad, Baltimore & Ohio, following New York Central's example is taking pleasant dividend action. And since most railroads have been spending enormous sums on maintenance, the prospect is not for profits will shortly be available for helpful action, particularly in the South.

Railroad traffic continues extremely heavy and should keep so during coming months.

Wheat prices are appreciably above the dollar mark and corn quotations have reached new high records.

Cotton has not gone very far below the thirty-cent level, nor is it expected to do so.

The general price level remains practically stationary, notwithstanding that there has been holding off on the part of buyers in various lines in the hope of bringing about declines.

* * *

The Federal Reserve Banks record expansion in rediscounts and a decrease in the reserve ratio, this contrasted in addition with slight firming of money rates, suggests some broadening of business activity.

* * *

Stock market fluctuations continue indecisive. There was an advance on Monday and a rather sharp break on Tuesday, a fairly vigorous recovery on Wednesday, a slight advance on Thursday, a relapse on Friday and a shade lower on Saturday. The net result for the week was a fractional decline in the index to 649.

Clearly the market is still in the hands of professional operators. The public appears to be waiting for a pronounced trend before making extensive commitments.

Wall Street traders are evidently paying no less attention to the encouraging developments abroad than to unfavorable matters. The demoralization in the oil industry, rumors of slackened productions and impending cuts in automobiles, the maneuvers of Yale, that and the next pond and the like.

The truth is that oil product on is diminishing, that curtailment a production of motor cars will be by seasonal and that the data day tia ties of specific ue s ils of no basic importance. The latest evening abroad is.

* * *

Serious difficulties will have to be overcome in Europe. But if they are overcome, as is probably probable, the effect upon sentiment in the highest credits here is certain to be pronounced.

IMPROVEMENT IN BUILDING IS NOTED

Monthly review of industrial and financial conditions in the New England district issued today by Fred erick H. Curtiss chairman and Federal Reserve agent declares optimism as to the future exists in that section but improvement in the building situation

The review says: Seasonal changes in business activity during September were more pronounced than during normal changes. Probably the majority of the industries of New England usually get a larger volume of orders in September than in August or the same rate they did in August.

MANUFACTURING.

Prices of manufactured goods did not show the same rising tendency as those of raw materials but they are naturally less sensitive to changing conditions than basic material prices.

There has been little recent change in manufacturing activity in New England other than that usually seen at this time of the year. The latest reports available on employment in this district cover August, which was that there was practically no change in the volume of employment then, as compared with July Part time operating schedules reported were substantially no more prevalent in August than in July.

Reports on the distribution of New England merchandise by the railroads of this district are not as satisfactory as production and employment reports. Now early in July carloadings of merchandise and miscellaneous freight on the New England roads have been less than at the corresponding period last year This contrasts with material increases shown for the entire country

RETAIL PRICES.

The distribution of merchandise in to the hands of the ultimate consumer early in the present time be pressured only in terms of the sale of merchandise distributed by department stores and chain store systems So far this year sales in dollars by New England department stores reporting to this bank have averaged about 10 per cent larger than the corresponding months last year

Retail prices are unevenly somewhat higher than a year ago, but not as high as that is terms of quantity instead of value probably would show an increase of as much as 10 per cent

The wide-spread postponement of the building operations in this city was one of the factors which brought about the wave of pessimism prevailing here before it is encouraging to note that the building situation in this district has lately improved

T. D. WHITNEY OPENS BACK BAY STORE

With the reputation of more than a century and a quarter in business, the T. D. Whitney Company, Boston's oldest retail store, opened a branch establishment today at NO. 288 Boylston street, opposite the Public Gardens.

This firm of linen specialists has its main location at Nos. 37 and 39 Temple place. The new store is decorated in Louis XVI period. The soft brown tones furnish an exquisite background for the display of the beautiful damasks, hand linens and towels which their representatives have carefully selected from Europe, Japan and the Madeira Islands.

Often entire families in out-of-the-way places in Belgium and Arabia were found weaving linen fabrics that are unusual and novel and are shown in this new store.

Decorated art linens, scarfs, centers, doilies, luncheon sets, vanity sets and linen covers and bedspreads have been directly imported by them from Italy, France, Belgium, Switzerland, Japan and the Madeira Islands.

This house has also opened a Paris office at No. 4 Faubourg Poissoniere that they may be in daily contact with the newest and best in the world's markets in decorative linens and laces.

TRAVEL BRIEFS
NATIONAL AND INTERNATIONAL

BIG GAME IN PACIFIC NORTHWEST.

Boston hunters have a new opportunity to prove their prowess if they do their hunting in the Pacific Northwest this Fall, according to C. E. Foster, Jr., 217 Old South building. Mr. Foster, who is the general passenger agent of the Northern Pacific Railway in Boston, says that bears are plentiful this year in sections of the Northwest.

"So many complaints have been made by cattle and sheep men about bears carrying off their animals, that hunting parties are being organized to keep busy throughout the Fall and Winter hunting bears," says Mr. Foster.

"The big game season throughout Montana, Washington and Oregon brings thousands of sportsmen every Winter to the western mountains."

IMPROVED SERVICE ON C. Z. N. W.

The Chicago & North Western Railway announces the establishment of through parlor car service between Chicago and Rochester, Minn., in both direction on the "Viking," via Milwaukee, Sparta, La Crosse and Winona.

This improved day service, in addition to the overnight through car service on night trains, makes the complete arrangements all that discriminating travelers could desire.

FIRST STEEL VESSEL.

Built in 1881 the Servia of the Cunard line was the first steel vessel. Iron steamers were built as early as 1843. The Servia was the forerunner of the modern ship. She was 525 feet long and had a gross tonnage of 7,392 tons.

AMERICAN EXPRESS WORLD'S CRUISE.

The record for the first complete pleasure cruise around the world, entire by water, was made last year by the S. S. Laconia, under charter to the American Express Company. The cruise under their management was a great success and they decided to make world cruising an annual event on their extensive travel schedule.

R. E. Towle, head of the company's travel department, learned that the Cunard Line was constructing a steamship, the Franconia, especially for cruising purposes. Instead of a few rooms with bath she had 67 rooms with bath and several suites deluxe of parlor, bedroom and bath. In place of the makeshift swimming pool of canvas erected on deck in warm weather she provided one which plans showed on "G" deck a complete athletic arena consisting of gymnasium, squash court and Pompeiian swimming pool occupying the entire width of the ship.

The public rooms were larger and more numerous and the deck space was nearly half again as large. And the largest deck tennis courts could be set up side by side. Numerous small shops for the barber, baby dresser, dentist, photographic supplies and general merchandise were located at convenient points on the broad companionways.

Shortly after this new cruiser was christened the "Franconia" the American Express secured her for their second world cruise which will sail from New York November 15th and from San Francisco December 8. It costs them over a million dollars for the 133 days of the cruise and they consider the investment worth while.

When the last traveler books for this cruise there will be a total of 497, which is the limit for the cruise in order to afford comfort for everyone aboard and on the shore trips. The cost of the cruise ranges from $2,000 up for a single berth to $25,000 for a suite of parlor, bedroom and bath for two people.

NEWSIES START 'LADDIE BOY' FUND SOON

The nation-wide newsboys "Laddie Boy" penny campaign, which is to be conducted for the purpose of reproducing President Harding's famous pet dog in copper from pennies contributed by the "newsies" of the country for presentation to Mrs. Harding will soon be in full swing.

The clay model is finished and it is a splendid one, due to the fact that Miss Beatrice Paff, the sculptress, and "Laddie Boy" put in a lot of work in its making. There were fifteen sittings in all.

The following former newsboys have accepted places on the National Honorary Committee:

Governor Smith of New York, United States Senator David I. Walsh, Postmaster General Harry S. New, International President, Pressmen and Assistants' Union Cyrus H. K. Curtis, Curtis Publishing Co., Adolph Ochs, Editor and Publisher, N. Y. Times; Marcus Loew of Loew's Circuit; Aaron Sapiro, founder of the California Farmers' Co-operative Marketing Association; William Wrigley, Jr., of Chicago; Charles Marshall of Chicago Opera Co.; Matt C. Brush of American Internationa. Corporation and Wesley Barry, movie star.

Governor Baxter of Maine will act as a committee of one to distribute the newsboys' campaign posters to the pub lishers of his State when they are ready.

E. F. Albee of the B. F. Keith interests, and who donated the famous Keith Boys Band of 400 pieces to play at the "Scotty" dedication two years ago, will serve in an advisory capacity.

PIANO PRODIGY ENTHRALS BIG AUDIENCE

By ZOE FABER.

For a musical prodigy to live up to his billboard adjectives, is no easy matter these days. Shura Cherkassky has been "wonderful everywhere as a "phenomenal boy pianist," and it was both a surprise and a joy to find that he could make good.

He seemed a very little boy on a very large stage, and with a very big job staring him in the face when he came out to a house well filled for one of the first recitals of the season at Symphony Hall yesterday afternoon.

With a funny little bow to right, to centre and to left (delight fully aposli-boyish), he sat down to his instrument and proceeded to forget that an audience watched and listened. It was a matter of a few moments when he had caught and was holding the interest of the house.

Shura Cherkassky is unique in that he is interesting, not by reason of unusual technical facility, but by the fullness of personality and musical potentialities that are compelling.

The program was a formidable one, but the young artist went through it with flying colors. It is greatly to his credit that he was most interesting in the Chopin group. There stood the test and he met it splendidly. The things that were more brilliant but lacked in depth of feeling he dismissed with a wave of the hand, so to speak, that spoke delightful bravado.

LOCAL LAF WINNERS PRODUCE GOOD ONES

Waiter: "What are you doing with those teaspoons in your pocket?"

Customer: "Doctor's orders. "He told me to take two teaspoons after each meal."

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Hocking, 69 Main street, Andover.

Her: "Yes, my grandfather planted the grove where he was a boy."

She: "You expect me to believe that?"

He: "Of course, why not?"

She: "How could a boy plant such big trees?"

Mr. Elsie Brown, No. 262 Washington street, Boston.

Bobbs: "Which do you prefer, life in the country or in the city?"

Dobbs: "I'm not sure; depends on whether I am in a mood to be attacked by a cow or an automobile."

By Mary A. Crosby, No. 7 Park street, Uxbridge.

Cancellation of Contract

October 1, 1923

We have on this date cancelled with the Trustees of the Boston Chamber of Commerce Realty Trust, Part A of our contract of June 12, 1922, to act as the Renting Agents of the new building now being built at 80 Federal Street, Boston.

Part B of the same contract, providing that John G. Morgan, Vice-President of W. H. Ballard & Co., Inc., act as the Trustees' Representative during the construction of the building, will continue in force.

Part A of this contract has been cancelled by us since we are unable to agree with the Trustees as to a division of the responsibility of the rental of the building. Amory Eliot, Chairman of the Trustees, 148 State Street, will assume the management and rental of the building.

We shall be pleased to serve as Real Estate Brokers, all of the prospective tenants for space in the building with whom we are conducting negotiations at the present time, also to serve as Real Estate Brokers all of the 3500 office tenants now located in the Office Building District who may be interested to secure our advice in regard to the rearranging of existing quarters or relocating in the Chamber of Commerce or any other building.

Klan Should Be Ignored

It Is an Ephemeral Movement Which Thrives on Notoriety, Excitement and Curiosity

We regret that Mayor Sullivan of Worcester made any public attempt to keep the people away from the Ku Klux meeting at Worcester. That was the very best way to gather the morbidly curious to the hall. Moreover, it lends a dignity to an ephemeral movement which we believe it would not otherwise have and it gives the bigoted an exaggerated idea of the importance which the opponents of the league attach to the Ku Klux movement.

It would be very much better if the Catholic laymen paid absolutely no attention to this Ku Klux movement, but left it to be handled by the common sense of the American people. It is really so un-American and childish as to be beneath the notice of the Catholic community. The saving grace of the whole movement is that so far as its membership is composed of American citizens they are undoubtedly, most of them, honest, sincere and patriotic, and will, when they discover the real purposes of the movement, abandon it with even greater disgust than those who are opposed to it now feel concerning it. It is a movement which thrives on notoriety and excitement and curiosity. It is an utterly exotic and noxious growth, but like some more growths on the human body it is better to be out than in

It will act as a safety valve for the pent-up emotion of a great many thoughtless but well-meaning people

Let our public authorities give it all the rope it wants within the law and pay no attention to it. It is a self-limited disease.

Virtue of Jazz Music

Claim Made That It Has Stimulated Interest in and Wider Study of Music

Among the editorial suggestions volunteered to us by our subscribers is one from a man who urges us to recognize the virtue of jazz music.

He writes: "A great deal is written about the jazz craze and its—as some claim—degrading influence. As a matter of fact, the present-day jazz has been the means of inventing new colors in music and under its attractive guise many who otherwise might never have touched an instrument have taken up the study of music."

Our correspondent urges that this spreading out of the interest in music which he attributes to jazz, but which we had supposed was due to the phonograph and the radio, should be accelerated by popularizing grand opera and the grander music. This, he suggests, could best be done by providing for open-air concerts by our Symphony Orchestra

It is late in the season, but this is really the time to discuss the question, because next Summer it will be too late again. We print the suggestion for what it is worth and to stimulate thought on the question.

Modify Prohibition

Perhaps—but Not Now

Mr. Ring Lardner, superhumorist, remarks that "prohibition, after all, is better than no whiskey at all."

Senator Wadsworth of New York says this is a nation of drinkers, and "the law is violated right and left, young people drink more than ever."

It is impossible to judge prohibition as yet. If it should prove that prohibition is to make a nation of bootleg whiskey drinkers out of a nation that was year by year becoming more sober and self-controlled, there will have to be radical modification of the Volstead law. But nothing is proved yet, except that savings bank deposits have increased, convictions for drunkenness and the inhabitants of prisons and poorhouses have fallen off in numbers.

It will take ten years to show how prohibition will really work. And meanwhile any radical change is improbable—if only because prohibitionists are well organized and others not.

Neglect of Tenean Beach

The Home of Many Famous Swimmers

Our Sporting Editor has asked us to write an editorial on the neglect of Tenean Beach, Neponset, which he says is "the home of more famous swimmers than all the other city parks combined, with the possible exception of Carson Street

"The Park Department," he says, "holds its races for boys and girls at the Freeport Street Beach, an insult and injustice to all the youngsters in the district.

"Freeport Street and Tenean do not compare as beaches in size, facilities or in any other way, and how those who select the beaches can overlook the Neponset resort in favor of the smaller beach is a mystery.

"Even the Richard H. Garvey Playground, the only park in the district, is said to be a dump and a malaria breeding place on account of the filthy condition in which it is allowed to remain!"

New Names in Bootlegging

At the trial of alleged conspirators to corrupt a prohibition enforcement agent, now going on before Judge Morris in the Federal Court, there appeared in the testimony the names of Donovan, Shea, Roache, Morton, Kerr, Sullivan and Harvey.

These are not the kinds of names which usually appear in the bootlegging scandals. The miserable bootlegging business is pretty much confined to foreigners who come from Mediterranean countries and who respect our hospitality by doing all they can to violate our laws.

But the names of Harvey, Roache, Morton, Sullivan, Kerr, Donovan and Shea are new names in the bootlegging catalog.

Contesting Divorce Cases

Another of our correspondents urges us to spread information as to the methods of contesting divorce actions brought by faithless husbands against helpless, honorable wives.

The impeccable wife can always ask the court to grant her an allowance out of her husband's income to contest such a divorce, and the husband will have to pay for the cost of contesting it.

MUST LEARN TO SWIM IN PRUSSIA

BERLIN, Oct 1.—Statistics showing that eight thousand persons meet their death by drowning every year have led the Prussian Minister of Public Welfare to provide for the introduction of swimming lessons into the curriculum of the public schools of Prussia, as well as special courses in rescue work and first aid to the drowning.

Boys and girls hereafter will be examined on their proficiency

Would Take Child to Country

Editor Helping Hand:

I wonder if there is a mother would like to have her child go to the country for a while as I am alone all day and would just love to have one with me. It is so beautiful here in the birches, and the air would do wonders for some poor child. Would like one around four or five or a little older. There is no expenses attached to this offer, as I will bear them all myself, and there is just my husband and myself in the family. I am a steady reader of your paper and always read the Helping Hand first, and wish you all the success in the world for the good you are doing people.

MRS. L. M. F.

Sounds like a fine place for some child with only a busy street to play in. Thank you muchly for the offer and also for the praise which we like but don't deserve.

Coats, Size 38

Editor Helping Hand:

I have the following articles which I will give to anyone who is in need of clothing: one woman's Winter coat, a Fall coat, both size 38; a new silk hat, and a man's coat, size 38.

Miss T. D. C

Thank you. You have been sent the address of J. M. F. who appeared for a neighbor who lost everything in a fire.

Three Children in Need

Editor Helping Hand:

I am a child of thirteen that is asking aid for my two sisters, aged six and eleven and myself. Father has not been working for two years because he is not well. My mother works five days a week, and her pay doesn't amount to more than $15 a week. The little one is in bad need of a coat, and we all need a hat for the Winter. We are in need of Winter dresses, also fourteen, twelve, and eight, and a pair of shoes, size 3½ or 4. It seems as though I am asking for an awful lot, but it is needed. Please try and find space in your paper for this. CARMELLA.

Anybody Need a Watch Dog?

Editor Helping Hand:

I have a little white dog I would like to anyone that will give it a good home and appreciate a watch dog and a loving pet.

Mrs. S. V. B.

Thank you. Your kind offer will be held for replies.

Father Killed in War

Editor Helping Hand:

I am writing to see if you can help us. I am the oldest of my family. We have a hard time to get along as papa was killed in the war, and mama cannot work now, as she is sick. We all need shoes, 6 or 6½ for myself, and three, four and one sizes for my brothers. Anything in underclothes, coats, pants or dresses, or anything would make us happy. We are sixes, myself fourteen, sister thirteen, brothers ten, six and a half and four and a half. Mama can make things over for us. M. P.

Offers More Help

Editor Helping Hand:

I received the address of Mrs. H. E. M. and sent her a bundle of clothes this week. I would have done so before, but I have been sick and waiting for a letter from her. I also received a letter from Mrs. H. G. for the baby walker, which I will send this week, but I didn't get the address of Mrs. H. M., requesting shoes for tender feet, or the name of Mrs. H. G., the eighteen-year-old girl with T. B. I have some clothes for her. Please send these two along. I wish I could do more, but circumstances prevent me.

MRS. C. H. R.

You are one of our most consistent helpers. You have been sent the addresses of Mrs. H. M. and Miss R. G. Thank you.

Editor Helping Hand.

I am a mother twenty-four years old and have two children, one three years old and one six teen months, and expect another in February. I wish some good reader could help me. My husband died two weeks ago, leaving me without a penny. The children and myself are both greatly in need of clothes, and we have not a thing for the Winter for any of us, so if anyone could help me, it would certainly be appreciated. I am staying with my mother now.

MRS. M. G.

Traffic Problem

Editor Boston American.

I disagree with your traffic suggestion number two. There is still enough room on Boston's streets for horse-drawn vehicles. Look again at your photograph of school street. There is space enough on that street for three lines of vehicles, one line at the right curb coming from Tremont street for short-time parking, one line at the other curb for slow-moving vehicles and a line in the middle for those moving swiftly.

I have just returned from an auto trip on which I drove through Massachusetts, New York, Ontario, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Connecticut and Rhode Island and I dislike to say that nearly every city and town that I went through handled traffic better than Boston does. There seems to be a lack of officers, signs, signals and co-operation. Each traffic officer apparently operates his crossing a little differently than the others One will call you down if you don't wait for his signal, the next will call you down if you do wait. Boston's traffic is not operated as one big unit, instead each officer practices home rule in his little kingdom.

By Herbert Kaufman

CLOUD brooms are sweeping in all directions but the Rhine. And even Germany's dire straits are perhaps exaggerated.

Proclamation of partial martial law by Berlin and Munich and protest strikes in the Ruhr coal fields are threatening phases, but brighter skies are indicated in the contradiction of reports that Dr. Von Kahr, newly appointed Bavarian military dictator, is supporting local Fascisti.

Instead, rumors are rife of approaching accord between the dissenting peoples of topsy-turvydom, and by the time these lines are printed the Teuton kaleidoscope may have shifted to a different pattern.

None the less, it would be a bold prophet who would dare form a definite opinion as to the outcome of disturbances yonder.

Russia sits grimly silent watching for a red flare to the west. Official Moscow bides its hour, while leaders of the Third Internationale boldly predict a second world war should outside powers attempt to join Stresemann in quelling anarchist uprisings.

Europe's infectious condition warns healthy America to maintain a safe distance from the sick-room of the universe. Diplomatic experience has not acquainted us with the necessary remedies, and if we wrote a prescription it would never be followed.

The allies want our dollars, not sense, as M. Poincare and associates have shown after each offer to mediate the reparations tangle.

Look to Your Liberty Bonds

Financiers owning tons of foreign securities here and abroad approve, of course, the cancellation of outstanding Entente loans.

A twelve-billion-dollar gift to governments whose depressed bonds are so heavily held hereabouts would mean a killing for Wall Street and enormously enhance the fortunes of investment houses with huge blocks of depreciated allied paper—mostly bought on the bargain counter.

Much of the money thus taken from taxpayers' pockets would go straight into theirs, together with the margin between present values of Libertys and Victorys, which would immediately drop several points as a result of our philanthropic action—a depression certain to be profitably anticipated by such fiscal experts.

Neat way to drop two birds with one stone

All's Not Rotten in Denmark

Despite twinges here and there, mother earth has few pressing worries at the moment.

The bull in the Spanish china-shop is apparently haltered.

Zankoff sends word via London that, far from turning tail, he has Bulgarian disorders well in hand and expects quickly to suppress the Communist factions fostered by the Stamboulisky regime.

Calm even descends on Oklahoma. Proponents of the intended rump Legislature abandon resistance to Governor Walton and transfer their quarrel to State courts—which should have dealt with the matter in the first place.

But the most heartening dispatch on the wires is news that a steamer, sailing from Honolulu with supplies for Japanese earthquake sufferers, receives radio instructions that its cargo isn't needed. There's a proud, self-reliant race for you.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON WEIGHT IN WATER

By Garrett P. Serviss

Famous Astronomer and Writer of Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

Here is an old question in a somewhat new dress: "I read your articles every night, and am wondering if you could settle the following friendly argument. A contends that a penny if dropped in the ocean at its deepest point would sink to the bottom; B contends that it would not. Would appreciate an explanation of your answer, whether yes or no."

THE answer is, yes, the penny would sink to the very bottom. The reason why it would not stop before reaching the bottom is that, at every point in its descent, it is heavier than a quantity of water equal to it in volume, or cubic size.

If the penny is composed of bronze its specific gravity, or weight, bulk for bulk, is nearly nine times that of water. In order to float, at any depth where it might be placed, its specific gravity would have to be the same as that of the water at the same depth.

But water is so slightly compressible that its density is very little higher at the bottom than at the surface of the sea; consequently when the penny has sunk say two or three miles it is still surrounded by water that is practically just as lacking in weight compared with the penny as it was at the surface.

At a depth of six miles the volume of the water would be only about one-twenty-fifth less than at the surface, although the pressure at that depth would be about 980 atmospheres, or say seven tons to the square inch. But in order to equal the penny in weight, bulk for bulk, the water at the depth of six miles would need to be reduced in volume decreased 900 per cent instead of only four per cent.

As long as a quantity of the water equaling the penny in weight remains larger in bulk than the penny, the latter will continue to sink.

Consider for a moment what compressibility means. You can easily compress a sponge as large as your head until it becomes no larger than a big orange. In this case you are not puzzled by the compressibility, because you can see how it works.

Then, finally, turn to water Because of its internal mobility it looks as though it should be compressible without much difficulty. But, as we have already seen, it is not so. Its molecules freely as they slide about, resist with great energy any attempt to squeeze them into a smaller space than the nature of things on the earth has allotted to them.

THREE-MINUTE TRIPS

ALL BRIDEGROOMS GET SAME GIFT

By Temple Manning

ONE of the most perplexing questions for a bride in our country to decide is what she shall give the bridegroom for a wedding present.

In Sweden it is different. From the moment a girl realizes there is such an institution as marriage, she knows just what will be her wedding present to her future husband.

As the years go by, she thinks more seriously of marriage, and dreams of the day when her Prince Charming will ride up to her father's castle and claim her for his bride. And in her young mind is the picture of herself making the wedding present she shall give him. For she will make his gift with her own hands and try harder than ever she tried before to take the tiniest stitches in the world.

To us the Swedish bride's wedding present may not sound romantic—it is a shirt. But this is the customary present for a Swedish girl to make with her own hands for her intended husband.

He wears it on their wedding day. Then it is carefully put away, and he never years if again until he dies and is buried in it.

The Mysterious Flight of the "Diamond-Studded" Cinderella

Was It to Escape the Sinister Shadow of the Dorothy King Tragedy? Was It to Seek Fame Befor the Footlights? Was It for Money? Was It for Love? NO!

BROADWAY'S Cinderella is back in her chimney corner, a perfumed nook of a nifty flat where soot and cinders are mostly imaginary. Her fairy-prince is chasing over Europe, seeking a diamond-studded platinum slipper to fit her silky foot. And her jealous step-sisters of the jazz belt have a mystery to sift as exciting as the original Cinderella's debut at the royal dance.

Why (ask the other Broadway beauties) did pretty Hilda Ferguson flee so suddenly to Europe? And why, after she got there, did she flee straight home again? Was it romance? Was it stage business? Was it subsidy? Was it the pursuing shadow of a great murder mystery? Or was it all of these—or none?

Hilda Ferguson is the dancer who once was the room-mate and chum of Dorothy King. When the Broadway butterfly was found dead from chloroform last Winter in the boudoir of her jewel-box apartment, and when the story of her love affair with John Kearsley Mitchell, the Philadelphia millionaire, was broadcast to the world, Hilda Ferguson's name glared in head-lines.

As the closest confidante of the dead girl—one who had worn her clothes, borrowed her jewels, heard her secrets, become intimate with each scarlet thread in the pattern of Dot King's scarlet days and nights—Hilda Ferguson found her blonde head in a very bonfire of publicity.

For a week she reveled in it—long enough to lose her job in the Music Box Revue, for even "dancers" can receive too much "newspaper notoriety" to suit their bosses. The Dot King mystery faded from the front pages. But it did not fade from Hilda Ferguson's horizon. She found herself a marked woman. Nowhere did she go that eyes did not stare, whispers did not sizzle, "Dot King's room-mate! Dot King's room-mate!"

The buzz-buzz was too much. It was this, declares Hilda Ferguson, that drove her to Europe—this and the promise of Arthur Hammerstein that he would use his influence to place her on the London stage. Nor is it inconceivable, unless worldly-wise Broadway, that a third motive was romantic. Broadway sensed a mutual softness between Hilda and Hammerstein.

Why not? Hammerstein, son of the late Oscar Hammerstein and himself a famous theatrical producer, three times married, twice named co-respondent in divorce actions, rumored engaged to a dozen beauties, the man who said, "A wife is like a derby hat; I couldn't think of promising to stay married, or to stay single!"—Hammerstein, the Adonis, was a widower—and ever partial to blondes, while certainly Hilda might have thrilled to this handsome six-footer.

At any rate, they both sailed on the same ship. And scarcely had the voyage begun when a triangle developed. If Hilda Ferguson, fleeing from a chimney corner that had become smoky with scandal, can be compared to Cinderella, then the gentleman she met on deck on the second or third day out may surely be dubbed the fairy prince of the plot.

He was attracted by her little feet. His identity is part of the mystery, but Broadway has learned this much—she calls him "Meddy" and he is wealthy and he is in the shoe business. No doubt that's why her little feet enthralled him. Little feet, to a man in the shoe business, are like a purple sunset to a painter—or Chateau Marguey to a connoisseur in wines. And Hilda wears a size two-triple-A! They can't fit her in the children's departments. She has to have all her foot-wear made to order.

Of course, it's easy to explain the shoe-man's attraction for Hilda. To a girl who wears a size two-triple-A, shoemen are like old buddies in the army. A two-triple-A girl can talk shop to a shoe-man with all the vivacity of a debutante talking prohibition prices to a college boy. As for a millionaire shoe-man—a shoe-man who owns shoe stores and shoe factories and can order slippers and bootees with the ease of a Rockefeller ordering oil—well, any two-triple-A girl can tell you she'd just adore to meet a shoe-man like that!

In the fairy story of Cinderella, the prince found the tiny slipper first, and then hunted the girl with the foot that would fit it. In the real-life tale of Broadway's Cinderella the idea was reversed. The prince found the girl with the tiny foot first. And then he began to hunt the slipper that would fit the foot.

It was to be the most wonderful slipper the world ever has seen. Broadway has Hilda Ferguson's own word for that, so it must be so. For her extraordinary two-triple-A feet, her new admirer felt nothing so drab as cloth slippers would do. Her slippers must be mesh—not leather or brocade or satin or gold or silver mesh—but PLATINUM mesh! And they must be embroidered—not with beads or buckles or glass or jade—but with DIAMONDS!

Her shoe prince never had seen diamond-studded, platinum-mesh slippers. (Neither, it is safe to say, had Hilda.) But he was sure he could find a craftsman in Europe who would make them. To find such a clever artisan would be his chief mission on the Continent.

"I thought it was too awfully nice of him," says Hilda. And—oh, yes—the cost of the slippers to the "prince" would be, roughly speaking, $50,000—rough enough.

The reader may wonder where Arthur Hammerstein was all this time, while Hilda Ferguson was talking shop to the shoe-man. Mr. Hammerstein admits he was around and about. He denies there is or ever was an engagement between him and Hilda. She toddled aboard the ship of her own accord. They were just good friends. Still, she was a charming deck companion. And he was going to help her out in London. Nobody blames him if the shoe-man got on his nerves.

Because the shoe-man got on his nerves, confesses Mr. Hammerstein, the friendship between himself and Hilda didn't last long after they reached London. There was, to put it bluntly, a quarrel. That's one reason, in Broadway's opinion, why Cinderella fled back to America again. Hammerstein was peeved at her. The "prince" was away on that slipper quest. She was all alone!

There was, too, another potent reason why Hilda found London and Paris and Deauville and everywhere else that she went on the Continent no kinder toward her than New York, with all its whispers, had been.

"Dot King's room-mate! Dot King's room-mate!"

Yes, the old stares, the old murmurs, gaped and hissed at her heels—the old blaze of notoriety, now become a menacing shadow, hounded her on the highways and byways of Europe. Dot King was dead. The question of who killed her was sleeping. But the mark of publicity lived and leered for "Dot King's room-mate" no matter whither she fled.

The shadow—if Hilda herself to any authority—was even blacker abroad than it had been at home. If the memory of people in Europe was long, their actual knowledge of the case was short. The rumor once more that Hilda Ferguson was in Europe because certain hidden powers did not want her in America, a legend of bribery and of dangling thousands began to tag her. It was, moans Hilda to her old chums on Broadway, a sickening experience!

And so Cinderella fled back to the chimney corner. If she was to be conspicuous, if people were to stare and whisper and be haughty when they were not downright rude, better to be conspicuous in her own city, better to face down the stares and be deaf to the whispers of New York, better the rudeness of Broadway than the haughtiness of London and Paris!

The particular chimney corner to which Cinderella returned was an expensive apartment on Fifty-eighth street. She liked it. The cozy flat would be pleasant place to linger until the "prince" appeared with the slippers made of platinum mesh and studded with diamonds. Meanwhile, Hilda had her eye on a job in Ziegfeld's Follies.

Lucky Cinderella! No murder mystery clouded the glory of the godmother in splendor of the pumpkin coach drawn by white mice, in the fairy-tale. But Broadway's Cinderella found herself the heroine of a modern, cynical, hard and worldly-wise drama. A dance for Hilda Ferguson in the Follies? Dot King room-mate? Very sorry—no! A tenant who figured in the King case? The ex-chum of the dead girl? Hilda Ferguson! Notice was served on Cinderella that the owners of the flat "required" her chimney-corner.

Broadway's Cinderella has found another nook. And Broadway's beauties, discussing the mystery of her round-trip flight, are not quite as bitter as the step-sisters of that other Cinderella. They hope Hilda Ferguson will not have to vacate her flat again. They wish her luck in her dancing career. And they do wish that "Meddy," the shoe-man "prince," will return with the platinum-and-diamond slipper for her size two-triple-A foot!

Medbury Says—

By John P. Medbury

AN Ohio woman is suing her husband for divorce. She says she consented to go to the county clerk's office with him but she didn't know she was getting married.

THIS was a mean trick on the part of the husband and the county clerk. They should have told her.

WHENEVER a man and woman are getting married they should let each other know.

THIS dame says it wasn't until she got home and started doing the dishes and scrubbing the floors that she realized something had happened.

SHE said she went with her husband while he bought some kind of a license, but she thought it was a ticket for a sightseeing tour.

SHE met him in a railroad station and he proposed marriage to her and she didn't know him well enough to turn him down.

SHE claims she wouldn't know yet that she was married only she got suspicious of her husband when he wanted her to go to work.

THE husband admitted that he didn't tell her she was getting married, he said he wanted to surprise her.

NOT only that, but he was afraid to tell her that she had married him for fear that she'd refuse to go out and look for a job.

EVERY once in a while you find a woman who's old-fashioned and doesn't like to work after she's married.

OF course a lot of people marry so often that it becomes monotonous.

AS it stands now, getting married is like buying a theatre ticket: "No mistakes rectified after leaving the church."

FIRST BE FREE WITH YOUR MONEY AT HOME.

Mr. Married Man, it makes your wife feel angry when she hears you insisting upon paying for refreshments for the crowd, when she thinks how reluctantly you would give to her what that round of refreshments cost.

The first place to be free with your money is at home.

It is a mighty sight better for you to be considered a good fellow at home than it is when you are out with the boys.

And why should you not play up to the home folk once in a while?

It ought to be worth more to you to have your wife and family look upon you as a good spender than for those outside your family to think so.

The trouble with most good spenders is that they deny their families much that would add to their comfort and happiness in order to appear as good fellows with the bunch.

Money spent in making home a better place, a more comfortable place, a more satisfying spot to each and every member of the family is well spent.

Don't paint the town pump and neglect your own shingles.
